PREFACE.

The history of the College for the period embracing the years 1861 to 1871 was written by Leroy Milton Yale, of the Class of '60, for the Catalogue published in 1873, and has been reproduced, without essential change, in this edition. The facts with regard to the history of the College have been compiled from authentic and official sources, most of them having been taken from the minutes of the Medical Board of Bellevue Hospital, the minutes of the Faculty, and the published minutes of the Board of Commissioners of Public Charities and Correction.

The statements contained in the Catalogue have been mainly derived from answers to circular letters, which were, as far as possible, sent to all Alumni.

Correspondence which may add to the completeness of future editions of the Catalogue, is earnestly solicited, and should be addressed to The Historian of the Alumni Association, at the College.

FREDERICK A. CASTLE.

N. B.—Insert the names of Irish, Lucien B., in the Class of 1862; Early, Maurice B., in the Class of 1873, and Figueira, M., in the Class of 1874. See page 255 for further corrections.

HISTORY OF THE COLLEGE.

The first Catalogue of Alumni of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College can have no more appropriate, and, it is believed, no more acceptable preface than a brief history of the college itself. Such a sketch cannot fail to be interesting to those who have enjoyed its practical advantages or to those who desire to know what fortunate circumstances, or what energy and forethought lay at the foundation of a success so phenomenal as its has been; what it was that gave the school high rank from the first, and has, at the end of a decade, given it the foremost place among its sister institutions in this country.

The Bellevue Hospital was formerly the Almshouse Hospital, and included a large part of those charity patients which abound in any large city, and of which New York has its full share. The field for medical study was immense; but, for a long time, it was not open, except to the favored few whose position as resident physicians, or dressers, gave them peculiar facilities. Previous to 1847, the direction of the medical affairs of the hospital appears to have been confided mainly to a resident physician, appointed from time to time. In the year mentioned, a change was made, and, on the 19th of November, 1847, the Medical Board was organized on the basis that has existed until the present time; viz., the division of the staff into physicians and surgeons, who should hold their positions permanently, and visit the wards in alternation. This change in the medical officers seems to have directly led to an attempt to utilize for instruction the abundant resources of the hospital; for we find in the minutes of the Medical Board, under date of February 28, 1849—but fifteen months after the organization of the Board—that an amphitheatre had already been constructed. This amphitheatre was formally opened on the 2d of March following, the exercises consisting of an address by Dr. D. M. Reese, then resident physician, and of the operation of lithotomy, and other surgical operations, by Dr. W. H. VanBuren. The minutes farther announced that clinical lectures would be delivered by members of the hospital staff, every Friday, at one o'clock p.m. This, then, is the beginning, as far as the records show, of that clinical teaching, with which the name of Bellevue has since become synonymous. From this opening until the present time, clinical lectures have been given in the hospital with greater or less regularity.
Another event which had a marked influence in making the hospital a centre of medical teaching was the erection of a building in which pathological studies could be advantageously carried on. This building was inaugurated, October 25, 1857. An address was delivered by Dr. John W. Francis, and additional remarks were made by Prof. Valentine Mott, Stevens, and Parker, and by Dr. (since Professor) James R. Wood. The venerable Dr. Mott closed his remarks on this occasion by demonstrating, in his well-known elegant manner the anatomy of hernia. From the published report of these addresses, it appears that the erection of the pathological building was due to the energy and zeal of Dr. Wood.

Such members of the hospital staff as were so disposed continued to give clinical instruction during the winter for the next three or four years; but the first recorded suggestion we have of a distinct school of medicine is found in the minutes of the Medical Board, under the date of December 18, 1860. The old Board of Ten Governors, which had for a time administered the charities of New York, had given place to the Board of Commissioners of Public Charities and Correction, which still controls the charitable and penal institutions of the city. In accordance with a request of the Commissioners, a Committee from the Medical Board of Bellevue Hospital had been appointed to examine and report upon the various institutions situated upon the islands, and under the control of the Commission. This committee consisted of Dr. Isaac E. Taylor, chairman, and Dr. James R. Wood. Their report, presented at the date above given, contained the following paragraph:

"In view of the great advantages accruing from the addition of such a large field of practice, presented to us by the Commissioners of Public Charities and Correction, and, after the patients are established in the new Island Hospital, and the assignment of the different wards to the various classes of disease—medical, surgical, uterine, and obstetrical—and the transfer of any acute or sub-acute cases to Bellevue Hospital of the patients, and without any advantage to the attending physician or surgeon in attendance on the island, thus enlarging the field for clinical instruction, and the extensive opportunities for advancing the cause of medical science, therefore attracting to an institution in the city of New York a large number of medical students, does it not, with even this cursory view of the subject, become an important question whether, ere many days elapse, Bellevue Hospital should not, nay, ought to have connected with it and established a college for the education of young men, independent of a mere hospital for clinical teaching, and thus making it one of the largest hospitals and, it may be, schools in the United States—nay, Europe? The committee think the subject is one worthy of consideration, and that when the institutions on the island and Bellevue Hospital are carefully regulated and in good working order, some plan might be suggested to carry it with effect. There are many reasons why it should be, and every exertion ought to be attempted to accomplish it, and the Commissioners will come up to the work when the proper time arrives for its consummation, as it is now at their suggestion and request. All of which is respectfully submitted.

(Signed) Isaac E. Taylor, Chairman of Committee.
James R. Wood.

New York, December 18, 1860.

At the meeting of the Medical Board, at which the report was read, that part of the report referring to the establishment of a medical college was referred back to the committee, who were directed to confer with the Commissioners upon the subject and to report.

This conference resulted favorably to the proposed school. The Board of Commissioners were enthusiastic in their endeavors to increase the value of the charitable institutions by making them, in addition to their original purpose, subserv more completely the cause of medical education. The project was so rapidly matured that at the meeting of the Medical Board, on the 1st of March, 1861, a committee was appointed to procure plans for a college building. On the 30th of the same month, the Commissioners notified the Medical Board that they would allow such a building to be erected upon the hospital grounds. At the same meeting at which this permission was received, the question of the formation of the Faculty came up in the shape of an inquiry as to what members of the Medical Board were willing to connect themselves with the new college. Some members of the Board were already connected with medical schools, others did not care to undertake the duties of teaching, and yet others were prevented by important engagements. At this meeting, however, Drs. B. W. McCready, I. E. Taylor, J. R. Wood, L. A. Sayre, S. Smith, A. B. Mott, and A. L. Loomis, declared themselves ready to join the enterprise, and the Faculty was organized upon the following day by the election of Dr. I. E. Taylor as President, Dr. B. W. McCready as Secretary, and I. E. Taylor as Treasurer. At the same time a committee was appointed to definitely ascertain what members of the hospital staff would become members of the Faculty. Eight members declined and ten accepted. To these ten, on the 2nd of April, chairs were assigned as follows:
Principles and Practice of Surgery .......... S. Smith.
Surgery of Bones and Accidents .......... F. H. Hamilton.
Operative Surgery and Surgical Pathology .......... J. R. Wood.
Surgical Anatomy .......... A. B. Mott.
Materia Medica and Therapeutics .......... B. W. McCready.

During the month of April, the Faculty was completed by the following appointments:

Principles and Practice of Medicine .......... A. Flint.
Physiology .......... A. Flint, Jr.
Chemistry and Toxicology .......... R. O. Doremus.

These constituted the original Faculty of the college. The changes in this body and the additions to it will be later mentioned in detail.*

The first exercises of the college, as such, were short courses given during April and May, 1861, by Profs. Wood and Hamilton, upon points connected with military surgery, a subject which the breaking out of the war—that had just taken place—rendered particularly important. These lectures were attended by about two hundred practitioners and students.

In the meantime the college had been incorporated, with the following Board of Trustees:

Hon. Simeon Draper,
Hon. James B. Nicholson,
Hon. Moses H. Grinnell,
Hon. Isaac Bell, Jr.,
Hon. Robert T. Haws, Comptroller of New York,
Hon. James T. Brady.
Most Rev. Archbishop Hughes.

Rev. Samuel D. Cook, D. D.
Rev. E. H. Chapin, D. D.

Commissioners of Public Charities and Correction.
George F. Talman, Esq.
Edward Minturn, Esq.
J. P. Giaud Foster, Esq.
Anthony L. Robertson, Esq.
Richard M. Blatchford, Esq.
Robert S. Hone, Esq.
Watts Sherman, Esq.
Matthew Morgan, Esq.

* Minutes of Commissioners, April 11, 1861.
The Commissioners were notified of this incorporation on the 8th of April, 1861, and, on the 11th, they passed the following preamble and resolutions:

"In consideration of the gratuitous services heretofore rendered, as well as the promised continuance of the same, by the Medical Board, and with a view of rendering a permanent, extended, and more valuable service to the living, it is

"Resolved, That permission be granted to the Trustees of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College to build and place under their charge, subject to the rules and regulations which now exist under the authority of this Board, a suitable building according to the plans submitted by Messrs. Post and Gambrill, architects, on the southerly part of Bellevue Hospital grounds.

"Resolved, That a meeting of the Trustees be held at No. 1 Bond Street, on Tuesday next, 16th instant, at four o'clock p. m., of which the corporators be notified, and that they be represented by a committee or otherwise.

"Simeon Draper, Pres.,
Isaac Bell, Jr.,
Moses H. Grinnell,
James B. Nicholson,

Commissioners.

"Report accepted and resolutions adopted."

The first meeting of the Trustees was accordingly held at the time and place designated in the resolution, and the Board was then organized. The Hon. Simeon Draper was the first President of the Board of Trustees, and retained the office until his death, in November, 1866. A complete list of the trustees of the college, from its incorporation up to 1882, will be found on pages 5 and 6.

During the following summer, the first building of the college was erected, a circular issued, and preparations were made for the opening of the school. In June, 1861, Dr. Gouley, to whom had been assigned the chair of Anatomy, resigned his position, considering it his duty to remain in the army during the continuance of the war. Dr. Timothy Childs was called to fill the vacancy; and the Faculty, as then constituted, continued unchanged until the death of Dr. Childs, four years later.

The first session of the college was opened by an excursion to the institutions on Blackwell's and Randall's Islands. The present Charity Hospital, on the former island, had then been recently built, to replace the old hospital destroyed by fire. It had been placed under the medical direction of the staff of Bellevue Hospital, and was one of the objects of interest on this occasion. After the return of the excursionists, addresses were delivered in the afternoon in the lecture-room of the college. The set address was delivered by Prof. McCready, of the college, and in it he gave some account of the clinical teaching, or rather the want of it, that had existed in New York up to that time. He showed, moreover, the need and advantages of such a school as then was being inaugurated. Dr Taylor, the President, followed with remarks of advice and encouragement to the students. Still farther remarks appropriate to the occasion were made by the Hon. Simeon Draper, President of the Board of Commissioners and of the Board of Trustees, by Archbishop Hughes, by the Rev. Dr. Chapin, and by the Hon. James T. Brady, of the Board of Trustees.

Although the college was new, the corps of professors was by no means inexperienced. Profs. Flint, Sr., Barker, Hamilton, Flint, Jr., Childs, and Doremus, had already held chairs of their respective branches in other colleges—some of them for many years—while the remainder of the Faculty had been clinical lecturers at the hospital and elsewhere for a long time. They were men conversant with their subjects, and accustomed to teach them. So, while the school was a new enterprise, it had so many elements of success, that it could by means be counted an experiment.

It is not, then, a matter of surprise that, before the first session was finished, the necessity of a larger building was felt. A committee was accordingly appointed to take measures for its erection. In May, 1862, the Commissioners, in order that they might have more perfect control of the buildings upon the hospital grounds, bought from the Faculty the college building, and, in return, leased it to the Faculty for a term of years. The project of a larger building remained incomplete until the following year, when (March, 1863) a conference of the Commissioners and committees from the Trustees and the Faculty of the college was held regarding it. The committee from the Faculty suggested a subscription to erect a building; the committee from the Trustees opposed any such subscription unless the college could secure a title to the ground upon which it should be built. The Faculty committee then proposed that the building should be placed upon the south side of Twenty-sixth Street, opposite to the entrance to the hospital, and presented a proposal from the owner of the ground to sell the amount requisite for the purpose. The Commissioners of Charities and Correction, however, stated to the Faculty at this interview that they (the Commissioners) did not wish the college to go outside of the hospital grounds, and proposed to erect a new building and to lease it to the college. This proposal was accepted, and in May, 1863, the Faculty of the college* presented to the Commission a complete plan of the organization of the Bureau of Medical and Surgical Relief for Out-door Poor as it now exists. In July, the Commissioners established this Bureau, and although some delay occurred in the execution of the plan, eventually, during the autumn and winter of 1865-66, the Commissioners erected a large building, so arranged as to serve the purposes both of the college and of the Out-door Bureau. The lower floor was divided in such a manner as to answer the requirements of a dispensary, and the upper part of the building was leased, December 2, 1865, to the Faculty, for the use of the college. This fine building is the one at present occupied. The old college building was altered, so that the lower floor is now occupied by the dead-house, the autopsy-rooms, a room for judicial inquests, and the Morgue. The former auditorium has become the museum. So large a room was eminently necessary, as, in addition to the specimens belonging to the hospital, which were constantly accumulating, the collections of Profs. Wood and Mott are in the building, together with the Museum of the New York Medical College, purchased by the Trustees of the college in 1864. In 1871, the Commissioners still farther improved the facilities for students, by erecting a larger and finer amphitheatre than the one previously used for clinical purposes, the old one having been found inadequate to the accommodation of the great numbers of students yearly in attendance at the hospital.

For the sake of clearness in the narrative, the changes in the Faculty have been reserved for mention by themselves. We have already given the composition of the Faculty, as it began its work in the autumn of 1861. With the exception that, during the session of 1862-63, Dr. Doremus was absent in Europe, and his duties were performed by Prof. B. Silliman, Jr., of Yale College, no change occurred until the melancholy death of Dr. Childs, the Professor of Anatomy, which took place at Norwich, Ct., September 3, 1865. Dr. Childs had, in early life, been surgeon to the Massachusetts regiment during the Mexican War; and later, had been for many years Professor of Anatomy and Surgery in the Berkshire Medical College, at Pittsfield, Mass., whence he was called to his position in this college. A vacancy being thus created, Dr. Stephen Smith was appointed to deliver the lectures upon anatomy, which he continued to do until his resignation, in 1872, having been made Professor of Anatomy in 1867, after he had delivered two courses. The Principles of Surgery, which had formerly been in Dr. Smith's charge, were assigned to Prof. Hamilton, in addition to his other duties.

* Minutes, vol. iii., p. 256.
In the spring of 1866, Dr. Henry D. Noyes, formerly Demonstrator of Anatomy, who had for some years held clinics at the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary, was made Professor of Ophthalmology. A summer course of lectures was proposed, in which several of the regular Faculty were to take part; and, to complete the course, Dr. Freeman J. Bumstead was appointed Professor of Syphilology in the summer term, Dr. Foster Swift, Lecturer on Diseases of the Skin, and Dr. J. Lewis Smith, Lecturer on Morbid Anatomy. A few weeks later, Dr. Bumstead resigned, and Dr. W. H. Van Buren, formerly Professor of Anatomy in the Medical Department of the University of New York, was chosen to fill the newly-created chair of Diseases of the Genito-Urinary System.

In April, 1867, the chair of Diseases of the Mind and Nervous System was created, and Dr. W. A. Hammond was elected to its occupancy. At the same time, the President, Dr. Taylor, tendered his resignation; but the Faculty, unwilling to lose so valuable a member, declined to accept his resignation, but relieved him of a portion of his duties by electing him Emeritus Professor of Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children. About the same time, Drs. Swift and J. Lewis Smith were made professors in the summer term, of the branches upon which they had respectively lectured.

In the following April, 1868, Prof. Wood tendered his resignation. It was not accepted as a member of the Faculty; but, instead, he was appointed Emeritus Professor of Surgery, continuing his hospital clinics, with the establishment and progress of which he had been so closely identified, long before the organization of the school. In the autumn of the same year, Prof. Barker resigned his position; but, in order to lighten his work, and yet not to lose his much esteemed teaching, he was appointed Professor of Clinical Midwifery and Diseases of Women. The resignation of Profs. Taylor and Barker placed the full didactic course on Obstetrics in the hands of Prof. Elliot, who gave the entire course during the two sessions, 1868–69, 1869–70, Drs. Taylor and Barker continuing to give their clinics as before. In the summer of 1870, Dr. Elliot was disabled by an attack of apoplexy, and in the following autumn was unequal to the task of giving the course. Prof. Swift, of the summer school, was appointed to give the course, but was prevented from so doing by illness. The services of Prof. J. P. White, of Buffalo, were secured. Dr. White gave the course, but declined to receive the fees from the tickets, very generously yielding them to Prof. Elliot. Dr. Elliot, however, was never able to resume his duties at the college; a second attack of apoplexy, on the 29th of January, 1871, terminated his valuable life, at the early age of forty-three. Although, at the formation of the college, Dr. Elliot was quite a young man, his preparation had been such that he was already fully equal to the position of professor. He received his doctorate in 1849, at the Medical Department of the University of New York. The next three years he spent as interne in the Dublin Lying-in-Asylum, at the Royal University Hospital in Edinburgh, under the instruction of the late Sir James Y. Simpson, and on board the Dreadnaught Hospital Ship, as well as in private studies in Paris. From 1852 to 1854, he was Resident Physician at the New York Lying-in-Asylum. In 1854, he was appointed one of the Physicians to Bellevue Hospital, which post he occupied until his death. Previous to the organization of the Bellevue school, he had lectured one session on anatomy in the Woodstock school, and one session (1858-'59) on Operative Midwifery, at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New York. He had, during his professional life, been connected with most of the charities for the relief of lying-in women or for children in New York, and notably with the Nursery and Child's Hospital. Accomplished as a gentleman, erudite and experienced in his profession, lucid and eloquent as a teacher, ably and gracefully filled a position attained by few men of his years, and his loss was correspondingly felt by his associates. Few men have been more regretted.

The vacancy caused by the death of Dr. Elliot was filled in April by the election of Dr. William T. Lusk, an alumnus of the college, who had spent several years in the study of obstetrics in the principal schools of Europe, and who had become well known as a lecturer on physiology in the Long Island College Hospital and in the Medical Department of Harvard University. At the same time, Dr. Foster Swift resigned his position in the school, and Dr. Edward L. Keyes was elected Lecturer on Dermatology.

At the end of the session of 1871-'72, Profs. McCready and Stephen Smith resigned their chairs. The vacancies were filled by the election of Dr. W. A. Hammond to the chair of Materia Medica and Therapeutics, in addition to his professorship of Diseases of the Mind and Nervous system, and of Dr. Alpheus B. Crosby to the chair of Anatomy. Prof. Mott also retired from the chair of Surgical Anotomy, and assumed charge for the entire year of the surgical clinic in the Out-door Bureau, with the title of Professor of Clinical and Operative Surgery. In addition, at the Bureau for Relief of the Out-door Poor, a medical clinic was established, under the direction of Prof. Flint, Sr., and a clinic for Diseases of Children, under the direction of Prof. Lusk. At the same time, a chair of Pathological Anatomy in the regular season was established, to which
Dr. Edward G. Janeway was appointed, and Dr. Keyes was made Professor of Dermatology.

In glancing over these changes, it is apparent that the Faculty designed to make the curriculum more thorough, by subdividing some branches in such a way that the various departments should be assigned to men whose especial study had made them unusually skilful in these particular directions. In addition, they have constantly been on the watch for teachers of special branches, and from time to time had added new chairs. Thus, the Diseases of the Mind and Nervous System, of the Eye, of the Skin, and Pathology, are taught by special professors.

Still farther completeness of instruction has been accomplished by the institution of a Summer session, including lectures and recitations. The first course of the summer school was given in 1867. Drs. Noyes, J. Lewis Smith, and Foster Swift, with Profs. Van Buren, Elliot, Flint, Jr., and Doremus took part in it, the members of the regular Faculty lecturing upon topics which could not be sufficiently emphasized in the regular course. With this lecture course, the recitations became, from year to year, more and more prominently associated, until the session of 1871, when they superseded the systematic lectures entirely, the course being made up of clinics, by members of the Faculty, of practical instruction in Diagnosis, Surgical Operations, and Chemical Manipulations, in addition to the recitations, which were conducted by a corps of instructors throughout the year. This remains until now [1873], with the addition of courses of lectures upon various subjects delivered by alumni of the college. The clinics of the college have become more and more varied, those of the hospitals (Bellevue and Charity) presenting every variety of disease that can demand in-door treatment, while the clinics at the Out-door Bureau afford cases of minor surgery, of those medical disorders that are less grave, but which, to the student, are of far more immediate importance, as well as a great variety of the disorders of children.

On the organization of the Faculty, March 31, 1861, Dr. I. E. Taylor was elected President, Dr. B. W. McCready, Secretary, and Dr. I. E. Taylor, Treasurer. Dr. Taylor has been President of the Faculty from the organization of the college to the present day. May 2, 1861, Dr. R. O. Doremus was elected Treasurer, in place of Dr. Taylor, resigned. October 21, 1861, Dr. A. Flint, Jr., was elected Secretary, in place of Dr. McCready, resigned. April 4, 1862, Dr. A. Flint, Jr., was appointed Treasurer, in place of Dr. Doremus, resigned. Dr. Flint, Jr., has been Secretary and Treasurer of the Faculty from 1862 to the present time.
The narration above given answers the questions proposed at the start; viz., what favorable circumstances and whose endeavors have brought about the great success of our Alma Mater? The favoring circumstances lay in the immense unimproved field presented by the public hospitals of this city, and in the fact that the officials governing them had the intelligent benevolence to rejoice at an opportunity of making their beneficent influences more widespread than before. The requisite zeal and foresight were abundantly found in the medical staff of Bellevue Hospital. In the good they have done, in the renown they have gained, in the honor that attaches to the title of surgeon or physician to Bellevue Hospital, they are now reaping a reward. The plan they chose was akin to the union of school and hospital, so common in Great Britain; but its continued success springs from the wisdom and enterprise with which improvements have been constantly sought for and adopted.

Let us consider for a moment some of the advantages that have directly or indirectly followed the establishment of the school; and these we would state without any feeling or intent of disparagement of the sister institutions that have preceded it, or are to-day her generous rivals. The first great benefit is an improvement in the education of medical students. Formerly, anything like a practical knowledge of the duties and resources of his profession was rare indeed in the recent graduate of an American medical school. The establishment of the Bellevue school has placed it in the power of every student to enter the profession, competent to intelligently meet any emergency. This effect is not confined to those who are enrolled as her pupils. Other schools have been incited to greater exertions and to similar methods of teaching, until, to-day, the influence of Bellevue is felt, not only in the neighboring schools, but in all throughout the country. The reform she inaugurated was so greatly needed, and was so patent a want, that it was perforce adopted wherever possible. It was this hope, this assurance, indeed, of making more thorough students, better qualified medical men, and, through them, "of rendering a permanent, extended, and more valuable service to the living," that induced the Commissioners to give their aid and countenance to the formation of a school in such close connection with their hospitals. And, if the benefits of the school had ceased here, they would have been enough; but the school has also been of material service to the institutions themselves and to their inmates.

In the first place the inmates of the hospital gained, by the general fact that no one observes so closely, no one studies so diligently, as he who must in his turn instruct. So that, when the medical officers of a hospital become teachers, they become doubly attentive, doubly watchful; no off-hand diagnosis will now do; they must be sure and careful, for mistakes now are not only, as before, an injury to the patient, but they mislead scores of students, who are, by-and-by, to treat others in their turn. Directly, then, the patients of any hospital are benefited by clinical teaching. By this general benefit, a special advantage has accrued to the charitable institutions from the establishment of this school; and this has arisen from the increased and especial zeal and sense of responsibility for the welfare of these institutions manifested by the Faculty of the college. Evidences of this could be multiplied by instancing the work done, the organizations perfected, and the reforms instituted mainly or solely by their endeavors. These have not been done in a selfish spirit; and whatever benefit has resulted from their labors has been generously shared with their associates. As an example of this kind of service, two instances will suffice. The first is the presentation, already mentioned, of the plan of organization for the Bureau of Medical and Surgical Relief for the Out-door Poor, fully elaborated by the Faculty of Bellevue Hospital Medical College. By this plan, a large dispensary has been thrown open to the poor, with the advantage of all the medical and surgical skill of the staff of Bellevue Hospital, whenever required. The out-door department has proved of great service to the poor, whose respect for the skill of the attendants is increased by the association of the Bureau with the hospital. Again, in 1866, the Commissioners of Public Charities and Correction made a communication to the Medical Board of Bellevue Hospital, suggesting the organization of a separate medical board for the hospital on Blackwell's Island, and changing the name of this hospital to that of "Charity Hospital." The Commissioners requested those members of the Medical Board of Bellevue, who were willing to assume the additional labor of serving on the Medical Board of Charity Hospital, to communicate their views to the Commission. Drs. Taylor, Wood, Flint, Hamilton, Sayre, Mott, Elliot, McCready, and Smith, of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, and Dr. Loonis, of the University Medical College, agreed to serve on the Medical Board of Charity Hospital. The other members of the Medical Board of Bellevue Hospital declined to assume the additional responsibility of service at the Charity Hospital.*

The Faculty of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, it will be seen, formed the nucleus of the Medical Board of the Charity Hospital, which was completed by the election of other members. This reorganization of the hospital was attended with great improvement in the administration of its affairs. Enough has been said to show that the Faculty of the college have always manifested a willingness to labor for the good of the public institutions with which they have been connected; and the wisdom and energy which they manifested in the first instance in organizing the school and developing the resources of the hospital for medical teaching, they have again and again exhibited for the benefit of the hospital, by devising reforms, and executing them when authorized by the Commission.

Thus we have simply detailed the early history of the college, and its progress through its first decade. Success so great needs no comment, no eulogium. We may rest assured that her future will not be unworthy of the past.

In continuing the history of Bellevue Hospital Medical College for the second decade of its existence, it becomes necessary to review, for the sake of completeness, some of the facts mentioned in the history of its earlier career. The changes in its Board of Trustees are already mentioned with sufficient detail on pages 5 and 6. The officers of the Faculty remain still the same as in 1871, but many changes have occurred in the Faculty itself.

Prof. B. W. McCready resigned the chair of Materia Medica and Therapeutics, on the 25th of January, 1882, and on the 7th of February was elected Emeritus Professor of the same branch. Prof. Stephen Smith resigned the Chair of Anatomy on the 27th of January. Prof. A. B. Mott's title was changed, February 7th, to Professor of Clinical and Operative Surgery, and on the same date a new Chair of Pathological and Practical Anatomy was created, and Edward G. Janeway (formerly Professor of Physiological and Pathological Anatomy in the University of the City of New York) was made its professor. Prof. Janeway was also appointed, on the 27th of the same month, an examiner in the Summer recitation class, in place of Dr. N. R. Moseley. On the same date, Joseph D. Bryant ('68), Frederick A. Castle ('66), Thaddeus M. B. Cross ('68), Prof. William A. Hammond, and Leroy Milton Yale ('66), were appointed Lecturers in the Summer session. Prof. Hammond was appointed to the chair of Materia Medica and Therapeutics, on the 6th of March. On the same date the vacancy in the professorship of Anatomy was filled by the election of Alpheus Benning Crosby (lately Professor of Surgery in the University of Michigan and in the Long Island College Hospital), and Edward L. Keyes was appointed Professor of Dermatology. The appointment on April 2d of Charles F. Roberts ('67), and Frederick A. Castle ('66) as Assistant Demonstrators of Anatomy, completed the changes in 1872.
On the 9th of June, 1873, John A. Wyeth ('73) was appointed Assistant Demonstrator of Anatomy. Owing to the arduous labors connected with the teaching of Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children, Dr. D. Warren Brickell (formerly Professor of Obstetrics in the New Orleans School of Medicine, and Physician to the Charity Hospital, New Orleans) was appointed, July 22d, to share the duties of the chair with Prof. Lusk. This arrangement enabled the latter to deliver a systematic course of lectures on the diseases of children during the subsequent session. August 11th, Prof. Hammond resigned the chair of Materia Medica and Therapeutics, and on the same date the Department of Diseases of the Mind and Nervous System was abolished. To fill the vacancy in the former chair, Prof. Edward G. Janeway was appointed Lecturer, and on the 2d of September, Prof. Hammond resigned all connection with the college. During this year Prof. Mott ceased his didactic lectures, and gave his attention only to his surgical clinic.

On the 7th of April, 1874, Prof. Brickell resigned his connection with the college, Prof. E. G. Janeway was appointed a regular member of the Faculty, as Professor of Pathological and Practical Anatomy, and Elijah A. Maxwell ('69) and Lewis A. Stimson ('74) were appointed Assistant Demonstrators of Anatomy. On the 12th of May a chair of Gynecology was created, and Dr. Edward Randolph Peaslee (Surgeon to the Woman's Hospital, and formerly a professor in the University of Vermont and in the New York Medical College), was elected to fill it.

On the 21st of April, 1875, the chair of Practical Surgery and Operations and Clinical Surgery, until then occupied by Prof. Hamilton, was declared vacant, and the chairs of Principles of Surgery and Practice of Surgery were united under the title of Principles and Practice of Surgery, the chair being filled by Prof. Van Buren; Prof. Wood resuming didactic teaching in so far as to lecture upon Hernia, Lithotomy, etc.; Prof. Sayre taking the subjects of Fractures and Dislocations, in connection with Orthopedic Surgery. On the 20th of May the chair of Psychological Medicine and Medical Jurisprudence, then newly created, was filled by the appointment of Dr. John P. Gray, the Superintendent of the N. Y. State Asylum for Insane, at Utica. On the same date Dr. Beverly Robinson was appointed Instructor in Laryngoscopy, and, in connection with Francke Huntington Bosworth ('68), gave instruction in that branch under the direction of Prof. Flint. December 15th, Abram A. Smith ('71) was appointed Lecturer on Therapeutics in the Spring term.
On the 1st of March, 1876, Prof. Janeway resigned the chair of Materia Medica and Therapeutics, to which Dr. William M. Polk was elected. April 4th, Leroy M. Yale ('66) was appointed Lecturer Adjunct upon Orthopedic Surgery, and Dr. J. Lewis Smith was appointed Professor of Diseases of Children. During this year, Dr. A. A. Smith was made Lecturer Adjunct upon Clinical Medicine, and Prof. Janeway increased the instruction given by him upon Diseases of the Nervous System.

On the 9th of August, 1877, the college suffered the loss of Prof. Alpheus B. Crosby, who died of kidney trouble consecutive to an acute diabetes, and on the 17th following, Joseph D. Bryant ('68) was appointed to fill the chair of Anatomy as Lecturer. On the same date Frederick S. Dennis ('74) was made Assistant Demonstrator of Anatomy, and Henry Goldthwaite ('76) was appointed an examiner in the College recitation class, vice Dr. Bryant. On September 7th, Dr. Erskine Mason, Surgeon to Bellevue and Roosevelt Hospitals, was appointed Clinical Professor of Surgery.

On the 21st of January, 1878, Prof. E. R. Peaslee died of pneumonia, and the duties of the chair of Gynecology again reverted to Prof. Lusk. On February 26th Dr. Bryant was made Professor of General Descriptive and Surgical Anatomy. Francke H. Bosworth ('68) was appointed Lecturer on Diseases of the Throat, and Abram A. Smith ('71) was appointed Lecturer on Clinical Medicine on the 2d of April.

On February 25th, 1879, Prof. Janeway resigned the chair of Practical Anatomy, and was succeeded by Drs. Frederick S. Dennis ('74) and William H. Welch, who were appointed Demonstrators of Anatomy. On the same date Dr. Charles Avery Doremus was appointed Lecturer on Practical Chemistry and Toxicology. May 19th, Prof. Polk resigned the chair of Materia Medica and Therapeutics, and was succeeded by Abram A. Smith ('71), who was appointed Lecturer upon that branch. On the same date Dr. Joseph W. Howe was appointed Clinical Professor of Surgery.

During 1880 the following changes in the Faculty occurred: On April 6th, Dr. A. A. Smith was appointed Professor of Materia Medica and Therapeutics and of Clinical Medicine; Dr. Charles A. Doremus was appointed Adjunct to the Chair of Chemistry and Toxicology, and Drs. John E. Allen ('74), John B. Isham ('78), and Gorham Bacon ('78), were appointed Assistant Demonstrators of Anatomy. On the 13th of April the Faculty established a number of permanent lectureships in the Spring term, and made the following appointments: Frederick A. Castle ('66), Lecturer on Pharmacology; Dr. Wm. H. Welch, Lecturer on Pathological Histology; Dr. Charles A. Doremus, Lecturer on Animal Chemistry; Thomas Herring Burchard ('72), Lecturer on Surgical Emergencies; Andrew R. Robinson ('68), Lecturer on Normal Histology, and on the 17th of April Dr. Charles S. Bull was appointed Lecturer on Ophthalmology and Otology.

From the above history it will be seen that during the second decade several of the professors of former years retired and their places were, to a considerable extent, filled by the appointment of alumni, so that at the close of this period (in 1881) Lusk ('64), Smith ('71), and Bryant ('68), were full professors; Yale ('66) and Bosworth ('68) were lecturers on special topics; Dennis ('74) was Demonstrator of Anatomy, and Castle ('66), Burchard ('72) and Robinson ('68) were Lecturers in the Spring term.

So far back as 1866, the faculty recognized the necessity for furnishing students with instruction upon special branches, in greater detail than could well be considered in the courses given by the professors of the seven chairs or demanded by the charter of the school. On referring to the history of that period (p. 28) and the circulars since published, it will be seen that these special courses were established as follows, in connection with the regular Winter term (Orthopedic Surgery having been taught as a special branch from the foundation of the school): 1866—Ophthalmology and Disease of the Genito-Urinary System. 1867—Disease of the Mind and Nervous System. 1871—Dermatology. 1872—Pathological Anatomy. 1874—Gynecology, Psychological Medicine and Medical Jurisprudence, and Laryngoscope and Disease of Throat and Nose. 1876—Diseases of Children.

The number of these special subjects were greatly increased by the lectures inaugurated in the Spring of 1866, a summary of which is to be found on page 28, et seq.; but in addition to the topics there referred to the regular faculty have, from time to time, delivered lectures upon special topics in the Spring terms or in the preliminary terms preceding the regular Winter sessions. A synopsis of such special courses is of interest in this connection. The Lectures by Professors Wood and Hamilton, in 1861, upon subjects connected with Military Surgery have already been alluded to. In the preliminary term of 1861 the following special subjects were taught: Organic Affections of the Uterus (Taylor), Uterine Displacements (Barker), Inflammatory Diseases of the Uterus and Appendages (Elliot), The Thoracic Viscera (Childs), Auscultation and Percussion (Flint), Syphilis (Hamilton), Surgical Affections of the Genito-Urinary Apparatus (Wood), Endosmosis and Exosmosis, and their Practical Applications (Doremus).

During the preliminary term of 1862 special lectures were delivered, as follows: Surgical Affections of the Breast and Testis (Wood), Surgical Affections of the Eye (Sayre), Amputations (Mott), Surgical Dressings (Smith), Inflammations of the Uterus (Taylor), The Symptoms, Signs and Disorders of Pregnancy (Barker), Uterine Therapeutics (Elliot), Diet (McCready), Comparative Anatomy (Childs), Diagnosis of Diseases of the Heart (Flint), Toxicology (Doremus), Anatomy and Functions of the Glandular Organs (Flint, Jr.).

In the preliminary term of 1863 the lectures were upon—Affections of the Bladder and Testis (Wood), Subjects Connected with Military Surgery or Hygiene (Hamilton), Diseases of the Rectum (Smith), Amputations (Mott), Diseases of the Female External Organs (Taylor), Dietetic Management of Infancy (Elliot), Malignant Diseases of the Uterus (Barker), Alcohol and Accessory Alliments (McCready), Visceral Anatomy (Childs), Anatomy and Physiology of the Blood (Flint, Jr.), Pathological Relations of the Blood (Flint).

In the preliminary term of 1864 the special lectures were as follows: Hernia (Wood), Military Hygiene (Hamilton), Exsections, (Sayre), Uses of the Laryngoscope (Smith), Amputations (Mott), Tumors of the Uterus (Taylor), Tumors of the Ovary (Elliot), Physical Diagnosis of Uterine Diseases (Barker), Alcohol and McCready, Visceral Anatomy (Childs), Operations Illustrative of Physiology (Flint, Jr.), Subjects Connected with Diagnosis (Flint), The Urine (Doremus).

In 1865 the following lectures were given: Anatomy and Pathology of the Perineum and Rectum (Wood), Military Hygiene (Hamilton), Syphilis (Sayre), Pathology of the Uterus, (Taylor), Hygiene of Infancy (Elliot), Diet (McCready), Anemias (Smith), Physical Diagnosis (Flint), The Chemistry of Poisons (Doremus), Physiological Operations (Flint, Jr.).

The following lectures were delivered in the preliminary term of 1866: Injuries of the Head (Wood), Anaplastic, or Reconstrucive Surgery (Hamilton), Amputations (Mott), Venereal Diseases (van Buren), Deviations of the Uterus (Taylor), Hygiene of Infancy (Elliot), Diet (McCready), Histology (Smith), Physical Diagnosis (Flint), The Chemistry of Poisons (Doremus), Physiological Operations (Flint, Jr.).

In 1867, during the preliminary term, the lectures were upon—Hernia (Wood), Military Hygiene (Hamilton), Syphilis (Sayre), Amputations (Mott), Diseases of the Bladder (Van Buren), Symptomatology of Infantile Diseases (Elliot), Diet (McCready), The Anatomy of the Hand and Foot (Smith), The Sign Language of the Heart (Flint), The Poisonous Gases (Doremus), Physiological Operations (Flint, Jr.), Paralysis (Hammond).

In 1878 these lectures were as follows: Field Amputations (Hamilton), Mechanical Appliances in Surgery (Sayre), Hemorrhage and the Means of Arresting It (Mott), Stone in the Bladder (Van Buren), Hygiene of Infancy (Elliot), The Science and Art of Prescribing (McCready), Anatomy of Joints (Smith), The Physical Examination of the Healthy Chest (Flint), Toxicology (Doremus), Physiological Operations (Flint, Jr.), Sleep and its Derangements (Hammond).

These lectures in 1869 were—Tumors (Hamilton), Non-Suppurative Diseases of the Joints (Sayre), Hemorrhage and the Means of Arresting It (Mott), Diseases of the Bladder (Van Buren), Diseases of Children (Elliot), Theory and Art of Prescribing (McCready), Anatomy and its Applications to Medicine and Surgery (Smith), Diseases of the Heart (Flint), Toxicology, in its Relations to Medical Jurisprudence (Doremus), Functions of the Glands (Flint, Jr.), Medical Applications of Electricity (Hammond).

In 1870 these lectures were—Amputations, and Keys to the Joints (Hamilton), Club-Foot (Sayre), Hemorrhage and the Means of Arresting It (Mott), Diseases of the Bladder (Van Buren), Theory and Art of Prescribing (McCready), Anatomy and its Applications to Medicine and Surgery (Smith), Physical Diagnosis of Diseases of the Heart (Flint), Toxicology, in its Relations to Medical Jurisprudence (Doremus), Functions of the Glands (Flint, Jr.), Medical Applications of Electricity (Hammond).

The preliminary lectures of 1871 were—Comparative Anatomy of the Infant and the Adult (Smith), New Methods of Treatment in Diseases of the Joints (Sayre), Auscultation and Percussion (Flint), Medical Applications of Electricity (Hammond), Hemorrhage and Means of Arresting It (Mott), Diseases of the Scrotum, Testis and Cord (Van Buren), Treatment of Malignant Growths (Hamilton), The Anatomy and Physiology of the Female Organs of Generation (Lusk), Theory and Art of Prescribing (McCready), Nervous System (Flint, Jr.), Toxicology, in its relations to Medical Jurisprudence (Doremus).

In the following preliminary term the lectures were—Auscultation and Percussion (Flint), Tumors (Hamilton), Club-Foot (Sayre), Clinical and Operative Surgery (Mott), Surgical Diseases of the Kidneys (Van Buren), Obstetrical Operations (Lusk), New Remedies and New Therapeutical Applications—Nervous Affections of the Face (Hammond), Experimental Physiology (Flint, Jr.), Anatomy of Expression, Mechanism of the Foot, &c. (Crosby), Toxicology (Doremus), How to use the Ophthalmoscope (Noyes), Skin Clinic (Keyes), Post-Mortems, and How to Make Them (Janeway).

The lectures of the preliminary term of 1873 were—Auscultation and Percussion (Flint), Amputations (Hamilton), Fibrous Anchylosis (Sayre), Clinical and Operative Surgery (Mott), Impotence (Van Buren), Obstetrical Operations (Lusk), Diseases of the Uterus (Brickell), Non-Pharmacological Therapeutics (Janeway), Experimental Physiology (Flint, Jr.), Anatomical Land-Marks (Crosby), Metallic and Vegetable Poisons (Doremus), Anatomy of the Eye (Noyes), Skin Clinic (Keyes).

In 1874 the following were the subjects; Introduction to the Physical Diagnosis of Diseases of the Chest (Flint), Amputations (Hamilton), Fibrous Anchylosis (Sayre), Clinical and Operative Surgery (Mott), Diseases of the Rectum (Van Buren), The Use of Instruments in Obstetrics (Lusk), Sterility, its Pathology and Treatment (Peaslee), Non-Pharmacological Therapeutics (Janeway), Physiological and Pathological Relation of the Excretions (Flint, Jr.), Topics in Surgical Anatomy (Crosby), Metallic and Vegetable Poisons (Doremus), Anatomy of the Eye (Noyes), How to Make Post-Mortems (Janeway), Skin Clinic (Keyes).

During the next preliminary term the following course was given: Introduction to Auscultation and Percussion (Flint), Hemorrhage (Wood), Surgical Poisons (Van Buren), Paralysis from Peripheral Irritation (Sayre), Clinical and Operative Surgery (Mott), Version (Lusk), Ovarian Tumors and Ovariotomy (Peaslee), Non-Pharmacological Therapeutics (Janeway), Experimentation in Physiology (Flint, Jr.), Surgical Anatomy of Fractures (Crosby), Metallic and Vegetable Poisons (Doremus), Anatomy of the Eye (Noyes), Inflammation (Janeway).

The preliminary course of 1876 was upon—Introduction to Auscultation and Percussion (Flint), Surgical Novelties (Van Buren), Paralysis and Incoördination from Genital Irritation (Sayre), Clinical and Operative Surgery (Mott), Physiology of the Ovum (Lusk), Anatomy and Surgery of the Perineum (Peaslee), Non-Pharmacological Therapeutics (Polk), Disassimilation and Exercise (Flint, Jr.), Surgical Anatomy of the Joints (Crosby), Chemical Physics (Doremus) Anatomy of the Nervous System in its relations to Pathology (Janeway), Anatomy of the Eye (Noyes), Exploration of the Genito-Urinary Passages (Keyes).
In the next year (1877), the following subjects were treated: Auscultation and Percussion (Flint), Genito-Urinary Surgery (Van Buren), Paralysis and Incoördination from Genital Irritation (Sayre), Clinical and Operative Surgery (Mott), Physiology of the Ovum (Lusk), Ovarian Tumors and Ovariotomy (Peaslee), Non-Pharmacological Therapeutics (Polk), Experimental Physiology (Flint, Jr.), Articulations (Bryant), The Poisonous Gases (Doremus), Pathology of Infectious Diseases (Janeway), Anatomy and Physiology of the Eye (Noyes), Anatomy and Physiology of the Skin (Keyes), Clinical Surgery (Mason).

The final course of preliminary lectures, distinct from those of the regular term was given in 1878, and did not differ from that of the preceding year except that Prof. Van Buren lectured on Stone in the Bladder, Prof. Bryant upon Topographical Anatomy, and Dr. A. A. Smith upon Clinical Medicine.

In 1873 this course was shortened by two weeks. In 1879 it was announced that thereafter these lectures would be the same in number and order as those of the regular term, thus offering to students a practical extension of the regular course by one month, and in 1880, was altogether abolished; attendance from the middle of September, in each term, being obligatory.

It is not to be understood, however, that the College had receded from its intention of affording instruction on special branches, for, in 1867, as we have already seen (page 28), a course of lectures had been inaugurated in the Spring and has since been continued each year without interruption. In this Spring and Summer term, lectures were given as follows: Upon Ophthalmology (Noyes), Morbid Anatomy (J. L. Smith), Diseases of the Skin (Swift), Diseases of the Genito-Urinary System (Van Buren), Animal Chemistry (Doremus), Microscopical Anatomy (Flint, Jr.), and Diseases of Children (Elliot). This course was repeated in the summer of 1868, Dr. Hammond contributing a series of lectures on Diseases of the Mind and Nervous System.

In 1869 the lecturers in the Summer session were reduced to Drs. Noyes, J. L. Smith and Swift, the character of this course being changed so as to introduce recitation as its main feature. These recitations were conducted by seven members of the regular faculty and their assistants. The resignation of Dr. Swift in 1871, practically suspended all but clinical lectures and recitations in the Summer term.

In 1871 the members of the regular faculty relinquished the recitations to a corps of instructors which was organized on the following basis, the term extending from March 15th to July 1st, and from September 2nd to the opening of the regular term: Principles and Practice of Medicine, Dr. Wm. M. Polk; Surgery, Dr. E. L. Keyes; Obstetrics, and Diseases of Women and Children, Dr. E. S. Dunster; Materia Medica and Therapeutics, Dr. L. M. Yale; Physiology and Microscopy, Dr. F. A. Castle; Anatomy, Dr. N. R. Moseley; Chemistry and Toxicology, Dr. A. W. Wilkinson.

In this course, Prof. E. G. Janeway replaced Dr. Polk, and Prof. Crosby took the place of Dr. Moseley, in 1873. During this year (1873) occurred a revival of the plan of giving lectures on special topics and a corps of "Alumni Lecturers" was organized, the faculty having "decided to appoint, each year, a certain number of lecturers from among the Alumni who had been graduates for more than three years, to lecture at the College during the Summer Session." These lectures were as follows, commencing in 1872:

Public Hygiene (Hammond), Surgical Anatomy (Bryant), Diseases of Infancy (Castle), Medical Applications of Electricity (Cross). In 1873, these lectures were: Surgical Anatomy (Bryant), Obstetrical Operations (Castle), Surgical Diseases of the Genito-Urinary System in the Male (Fluhrer), Syphilitic Diseases of the Eye (Pooley), Medical Jurisprudence (Watson), and Electro-Physiology and Therapeutics (Mason). The lectures in the Summer of 1874 were: Surgical Anatomy (Bryant), Obstetrical Operations (Castle), Diseases of the Throat (Bosworth), Certain Diseases of the Eye (Pooley), and Surgical Diseases of Women (Wylie). In 1875, there were no lectures other than clinical in the Spring term; but in 1876, the regular faculty again assumed this work and lectures were given as follows: Diseases of the Heart (Flint), Diseases of the Urinary Bladder (Van Buren), Obstetrical Operations with Practical Exercises (Lusk), Surgical Diseases of Women (Peaslee), Surgical Pathology (Crosby), Toxicology (Doremus), Diseases of the Spinal Cord (Janeway), Syphilis (Keyes), and Therapeutics (A. A. Smith).

In 1877, Professors Flint, Van Buren, Lusk, Crosby and Keyes lectured upon the same topics as in the previous Spring, the other lectures being: Surgery of the Non-Pregnant Uterus (Peaslee), Functions of the Glands (Flint, Jr.), Chemistry of the Urine (Doremus), and Medical Diagnosis (Janeway).

During the Spring term of 1879, lectures were delivered upon Introduction to the Study of Physical Diagnosis of Diseases of the Chest (Flint), Surgical Diseases of the Rectum (Van Buren), Reflex Paralysis (Sayre), Physiology of the Ovum (Lusk), Therapeutics of Food and Electricity (A. A. Smith), Experimental Physiology (Flint, Jr.), Anatomy of the Joints (Bryant), Poisons (Doremus), Anatomy of the Brain and Spinal Cord (Janeway), Anatomy and Physiology of the Ear (Noyes), and Anatomy and Physiology of the Skin (Keyes).

On the 13th of April, 1880, the faculty established a number of permanent lectureships in the Spring session, as noted on page 35.

The above resumé shows the amount and variety of instruction upon special topics afforded by the College to have been well in keeping with the demands of the period. Reference has already been made to the establishment of regular recitations as one of the features of instruction in the College. Begun in 1877, they have not only been continued during the Spring and Summer and through the preliminary term, but have lately formed a part of the Winter term. In 1873, the Summer recitation class was divided into two sections: Junior and Senior, and the next year it was made to embrace, in addition to the seven fundamental branches, recitations upon Diseases of Women and Children, Venereal Diseases, Diseases of the Eye and Ear, Diseases of the Skin, and Minor Surgery.

Commencing with the Winter session of 1879-'80, was instituted a weekly examination, in the evening, by members of the regular faculty, upon the subjects of the lectures. These were free, but were available only for candidates for full, primary, or final examination, and comprised the branches upon which examination for the degree was based.

Let us next consider the course of the College with regard to matriculating examinations, extension and gradation of the lecture course and requirements for the degree—subjects which have of late received lengthy discussion in medical societies and periodicals. Whatever criticism has been made of the action of the College with relation to them there can be no ground for a charge that it has failed to appreciate the importance of such reforms, or been dilatory in its efforts to establish them. The historical importance of the efforts of the College in this direction will justify some detail in quotation from its published circulars.

The first reference to a matriculation examination is found in the circular for 1872-'73, wherein the faculty announced that the diploma of the College had been officially recognized by the Royal College of Surgeons, of England, for those who had passed a regular matriculating examination in classics, mathematics, etc., and a scheme for such an examination was given in the circular following, in detail, as follows:

"English Language, including Grammar and Composition. Arithmetic, including vulgar and decimal fractions. Algebra, including simple equations. Geometry, first two books of Euclid. Latin, translation and grammar. In addition to the above one of the following optional studies, viz.: Greek, French, German, and Natural Philosophy, including Mechanics, Hydrostatics and Pneumatics. Text Books: Latin—Caesar (De Bello Gallico), first two books; Natural Philosophy—Peck's Ganot, or Parker's Philosophy; Greek—First Chapter of St. John's Gospel; French—First Chapter of Télémaque, or Charles XII.; German—Adler's Reader, 1st part.”

In 1873, two regular examinations for the degree were established, one at the close of the Winter session, the other during the first week in October, and no examinations were allowed at other times. In 1876, the number of examinations during the year was changed to three, the third being at the close of the Summer session. It was also announced that students who had attended two full Winter courses upon all the departments taught in the College might be examined upon Materia Medica, Physiology, Anatomy and Chemistry, at the end of the second course, and, if they were successful in these examinations, could be examined, at the end of a third course, upon Practice of Medicine, Surgery, and Obstetrics only. Candidates for the Primary Examination would be required to appear with those passing all the examinations, and pay half of the graduation fee. The thesis, certificates and remainder of the graduation fee to precede the final examination.

This regulation, permitting a student who desired it to extend his college instruction over three years, instead of limiting it to two courses, was but the preliminary step, as will be seen later, to an obligatory graded course of three terms, and as an inducement to students to avail themselves of this extended course, the Faculty, in 1879, offered to those who could successfully pass an examination in the primary branches at the end of the second course, free private instruction in Normal Histology, Microscopic Examination of Urine, and Practical Chemistry and Toxicology.

At the meeting of the Faculty on the 19th of May, 1879, a committee was appointed, composed of Professors Austin Flint, James R. Wood, E. G. Janeway, and Joseph D. Bryant, to consider the question of modification in the plan of instruction in the college. This committee reported, on the 8th of September, a resolution embodying a change in the plan of instruction, and, at the same time, Prof. Austin Flint, Jr., at the request of the committee, presented another plan, which was adopted,* and was thus announced, in a circular issued in 1880, as follows:

“Resolved, that after the regular session of 1879–80, the plan of instruction at the Bellevue Hospital Medical College be so modified as to apportion to each one of three sessions, certain divisions of the study of Medicine, with final examinations in elementary branches at the end of the first and of the second session; the examinations for graduation at the end of the third session being confined to the branches of Practice of Medicine, Surgery, and Obstetrics; the plan to embrace requirements as regards practical instruction in Chemistry, Histology, Operative Surgery, and Clinical Medicine, together with systematic recitations in all the branches.

* Adopted, September 8th, 1879.

"In adopting this plan, the number of Hospital Lectures is not to be diminished, and the union of clinical with didactic teaching is to continue, as heretofore, to be a leading principle in the practical departments.

"Resolved, That matriculates who expect to become candidates for graduation after the close of the session of 1879–80 will be required to furnish, by examination or otherwise, satisfactory evidence of a preliminary education deemed sufficient for entering upon the study of medicine."

At the same time the following plan was adopted for the matriculation examination by the Faculty, subject, however, to modifications in its details, should any changes appear advisable before it actually went into operation:

"The matriculation examination will consist of English Composition (one foolscap page of original composition upon any subject, in the handwriting of the candidate); Grammar, an examination upon the above-mentioned composition; Arithmetic, including vulgar and decimal fractions; Algebra, including simple equations; Geometry, first two books of Euclid.

"The matriculation examination by the Faculty will be waived for those who have received the degree of A. B.; those who have passed the freshman examination for entrance into any incorporated literary college; those who present certificates of proficiency in the subjects of the matriculation examination from the principal or teachers of any reputable high-school; those who have passed a matriculation examination at any recognized medical college or at any scientific school or academy in which an examination is required for admission, and those who present certificates of having passed the matriculation examination from certain examiners appointed by the Faculty of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College.*

EXAMINATIONS FOR STUDENTS WHO TAKE THE FULL COURSE OF THREE YEARS.

"First year—Physics and Inorganic Chemistry; Descriptive Anatomy; Materia Medica. Second year—Organic and Physiological Chemistry; General and Surgical Anatomy; Physiology; Therapeutics. Third year—Practice of Medicine; Surgery; Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children. Before the final examinations for the third year, candidates must present certificates from recognized teachers of one course of instruction in each of the following-named practical studies: viz., Dissections, Practical Chemistry, and a Prac-

* It was the intention of the Faculty to appoint such special examiners from among the Alumni of the College, so as to enable students residing at a distance to avoid the annoyance and expense of a journey to New York until assured of their acceptance as matriculates.
ticial Course of Physiological and Pathological Histology. No graduating thesis is required.

"Candidates who fail in one only of the branches for examination for the first or the second year, will be permitted to pass on to the studies of the succeeding year, and to make up the branch upon which they failed in their previous examination. Candidates who fail in more than one branch in the examinations for the first or the second year, will be put back one year, but they will not be required to pay more than the regular fees for the three years.

"Graduates of other recognized medical colleges, and students who have attended two full courses of lectures at other recognized medical colleges, or two full years at other recognized medical colleges that have a compulsory graded course will be admitted to the third year without a matriculation examination; but all such as are candidates for graduation will be required to pass a full examination upon all the branches examined upon for the three years at the close of the session, and all, including graduates of other medical colleges, irrespective of the date of their graduation, will be required to pay the fee for the third year, which is $100.

"Students who have attended one full course or the first year of a compulsory graded course at other recognized medical colleges will be admitted to the second year; but all such will be required to submit to the conditions of the matriculation examination, and to pass, at the end of the session, an examination upon the branches examined upon for the first and second years.

"Partial or incomplete courses at other recognized medical colleges will be reckoned as time of study, but will not be counted as entitling students to enter for the second or the third year or be considered in reduction of fees, except that two partial courses at other recognized medical colleges, which together are equivalent to one full course, will be recognized as a full course of lectures.

"Certificates of three years' study after eighteen years of age, from a regular physician, in good standing, in accordance with one of the provisions of the charter of the College, will be required, and candid-dates for graduation must have reached the age of twenty-one years.

"All examinations will take place at the close of the Winter session only, except in the case of the final examinations for those whose three years' term of study does not expire until the Fall. For such candid-dates, final examinations will be held in October.

"There will be no "preliminary term," and the regular Winter session will be extended to six months, beginning about the middle of September and ending about the middle of March. The Spring recitation class will be continued as an optional course.

"Three courses of lectures are required for graduation. Students are expected to attend all the lectures, including clinics, for the first two years. During the third year, students are expected to attend all the clinics, but they may confine their attendance upon the didactic lectures to the branches upon which they are to pass their final examinations, thus having time for practical work in the dissecting room, the chemical laboratory, and the pathological laboratory, and for practical clinical exercises in Medicine, Surgery and Obstetrics.
Students are expected to attend the regular weekly recitations, held by members of the Faculty, during each session upon the branches upon which they are to be examined at the close of the session.

"For students who attend the full course of instruction at the College for three years, the regular examinations at the close of each of the three sessions is obligatory.

"Graduates of other recognized medical colleges, of three or more years' standing, will not be admitted to their final examination for the degree, unless they present a certificate of membership of some medical society entitled to representation in the American Medical Association."

FEES, &c.

"Matriculation fee for each year, $5; for all first-year students, $140; for all second-year students, $140; for all third-year students, including all graduates of other recognized medical colleges who are candidates for graduation, irrespective of the date of their previous graduation, and including third-year students who have attended two sessions at the College, $100. Fee for the first year's examination, $10; for the second year's examination, $10; for the third year's examination, $10; for an examination at the end of a session for the first and the second year together, $20; for an examination at the end of a session for the three years together, $30.

"Students not desiring to take the full course with reference to graduation, may take tickets for special courses. For first and second course students, the fees for the separate departments are as follows:
Practice of Medicine, including Psychological Medicine, and Medical Jurisprudence and Diseases of the Throat, $20; Surgery, including Ophthalmology and Otology, and Dermatology, $25; Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children, $15; Materia Medica and Therapentics, including Pathological Anatomy and Histology, and Diseases of the Nervous System, $20; Physiology and Physiological Anatomy, $20; General, Descriptive, and Surgical Anatomy, $20; Chemistry and Toxicology, $20.

"For all graduates of other recognized medical colleges, irrespective of the date of graduation, and for students who have attended two full courses of lectures, either at the Bellevue Hospital Medical College or at other recognized medical colleges, the fees for the above-mentioned separate departments will be as follows: Practice of Medicine, &c., $15; Surgery, &c., $20; Obstetrics, &c., $10; Materia Medica, &c., $15; Physiology, $15; Anatomy, $15; Chemistry, $15.

"Students and graduates who have attended the third year course, and all Alumni of the College, may attend any number of subsequent courses on payment of the matriculation fee.

"In order to fulfil, to the letter, the tacit engagements between the College and those students who may attend the session of 1879–80 with the intention of completing their medical studies under the old plan, the following exceptions will be made for such students:

"Students who take a full course for the session of 1879–80 will be permitted, other requirements being fulfilled, to graduate at the end of a second full course taken in 1880–81.

"Students who attend their second course in 1879–80, but who do not graduate at the end of the course, will be permitted to attend the course of 1880–81 as third-course students, without payment of fees, and graduate at the end of the session.

"Students who attend two full courses in the College in 1879–80 and in 1880–81, but who do not graduate in 1880–81, will be allowed to attend the course of 1881–82 as third-course students, without payment of fees, and graduate at the end of the session.

"To summarize the exceptions just mentioned, the new requirements will apply to those only who begin their attendance at the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, either as first-year, second-year, or third-year students, with the session of 1880–81; and students who begin their attendance with the session of 1879–80 may graduate under the old requirements."

The courses of certain colleges which had adopted a graded system of instruction were accepted as follows:

Chicago Medical College.—First year, equivalent to one course of lectures upon Materia Medica and Therapeutics, Physiology, Anatomy and Chemistry. The first and second years together, equivalent to one full course of lectures upon the seven departments.

Medical Department of Harvard University.—First year, equivalent to one course of lectures upon Physiology, Anatomy and Chemistry. The first and second years together, equivalent to two courses of lectures upon Physiology, Anatomy, and Chemistry, and one course upon Practice of Medicine, Surgery, Obstetrics and Materia Medica and Therapeutics.

Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania.—First year, equivalent to one course of lectures upon Materia Medica, Physiology, Anatomy and Chemistry. The first and second years together, equivalent to two courses of lectures upon Physiology, Anatomy and Chemistry, and one course of lectures upon Practice of Medicine, Surgery, Obstetrics and Materia Medica and Therapeutics.

Medical Department of Syracuse University.—First year, equivalent to one course of lectures upon Physiology, Anatomy and Chemistry, The first and second years together, equivalent to two courses of lectures upon Physiology, Anatomy and Chemistry, and one course of lectures upon Practice of Medicine, Surgery, Obstetrics and Materia Medica and Therapeutics.

It was also announced in 1879, that thereafter candidates for the degree who appeared to the Faculty to be unfit to practice medicine and who were therefore rejected, would be required to attend another full course of lectures before again presenting themselves for examination. This extra course was to be gratuitous. Candidates, however, who were well prepared in certain departments, but who did not pass an entirely satisfactory examination in certain other departments, might, at the pleasure of the Faculty, be conditioned in those departments, not exceeding three in number. Candidates thus conditioned might, at the end of six months, be re-examined in the departments in which they had failed.

Commencing with the Session of 1880-81, the regulations adopted in September 1879 were enforced, and the circular of that year contained the following clear statement of the opinion of the Faculty regarding the importance of the change:

"As regards requirements for matriculation, the Faculty are convinced that no student should begin the study of medicine without giving evidence that he has received a fair English education. During the first two years of medical study, students are required to attend all the lectures, including clinics. The Faculty feel that no one should begin the practice of medicine without a training of three years in the so-called practical departments, and a familiarity with disease such as can be acquired only by constant attendance upon clinics during the entire period of study. When the student, having attended two full courses of lectures upon all the subjects taught in the College; has passed his examinations in Materia Medica, Physiology, Anatomy, and Chemistry, he is to be brought in contact with cases more closely during his third course, and he will be required to begin then to exercise for himself his judgment in the diagnosis and treatment of disease, as a final preparation for his professional life. This last course of clinical instruction will include surgical operations on the cadaver performed by each student.

"For several years, the Faculty have endeavored to induce students to attend three full courses of lectures, passing their examinations in the elementary departments at the close of the second session. Those who have followed this course have shown, in their examinations, a grade of qualification so much higher than the standard usually attained by students under the old system, that it has been thought advisable to make the three-years' course obligatory. This step has met with the unqualified approval of the Alumni and of all friends of the College. Clinical instruction, in connection with the regular didactic courses, will remain as the distinguishing feature of the curriculum, beginning with the first course and continuing without interruption during the entire three years; and the wealth of clinical material at the command of the Faculty will still be utilized as far as possible. The advantages of the new system are sufficiently evident: It will be easier for students to perfect themselves for examination on certain subjects for each of the three years than it has been heretofore to prepare for the single final examination on all the subjects taught at the College; at the close of the third session, all students should become thoroughly grounded in the actual practical work to which they expect to devote themselves after graduation; the advanced standard of attainments required of graduates will undoubtedly enhance the value of a diploma from the College. In the important step which the Faculty have taken, as they believe, in the interests of a higher grade of professional acquirements, they hope and expect to receive the hearty cooperation of the Alumni and friends of the College."
No one doubted that in making this change the number of students at the College would be considerably diminished. It was the natural result of requiring a matriculating examination and three courses in place of two courses of lectures. It could have been no surprise, therefore, when the class was reduced from 502 students in 1880–81 to 379 in 1881–82. It was, however, a surprise to many alumni, and, we may well believe, a source of great regret to the profession of the country generally, when, near the close of the session of 1880–81, the following circular was published by the faculty:

"The Faculty of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College introduced, for the Session of 1880–81, important changes in the curriculum of instruction and in the requirements for graduation. The preliminary term was abolished, and the regular Winter session was extended to six months. Attendance upon three Winter sessions was made obligatory. Students were required during the two first years to attend all the lectures, didactic and clinical, and at the end of the first and second years to pass examinations in Chemistry, Anatomy, Physiology, Materia Medica, and Therapeutics. An examination in these branches having been passed, the third year was to be devoted to the practical departments of Medicine, Surgery and Obstetrics. The requirements embraced, in addition to Dissections, practical Courses in Chemistry and Histology. Provisions were also made for additional exercises in the three practical departments. These exercises, consisting of personal examinations in cases of disease, the performance of surgical operations on the cadaver, and demonstrations in Gynaecology, were limited to third-course students. These changes were made by the Faculty with entire unanimity and with the expectation that a considerable pecuniary sacrifice would be demanded on the part of its members, who were actuated solely by a desire to secure a higher grade of professional requirements for the graduates of the College.

"The experience of the session of 1880–81 has led the Faculty reluctantly to the conclusion, that to persist in the requirement of attendance during three courses will be to incur a risk, as regards the interests of the College, which they do not feel justified in assuming; and the purpose of this announcement is to state that, after the present session of 1880–81, attendance during a third session will be optional and not obligatory. This College, like most American medical colleges, is self-sustaining; and the special provisions for instruction, which have been and will continue to be maintained, call for a large expenditure of money as well as of time and labor. With an undiminished desire to continue the requirement of three sessions, and with not less willingness than heretofore to make whatever personal sacrifices may be necessary, the Faculty feel obliged, by a proper regard for the prosperity and usefulness of the College, to return to the requirements for graduation which were in force prior to the session of 1880–81. In making the changes introduced during this session, it was foreseen that, a large proportion of the students in this College coming from distant parts of the United States, the necessary expenses of spending three winters in the city of New York would render difficult or impossible the attendance of many who would otherwise join the classes. Many students, of course, would be led to attend other colleges which require only two sessions for graduation.
It was hoped, however, that the progressive movement of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College would secure approval and coöperation on the part of the medical profession sufficient to render the change feasible. In so far as a judgment can be formed from the present session, the profession is not prepared to sustain the movement."

"In announcing a return to their original requirements for graduation, the Faculty desire to state that all the new additions to the curriculum will be retained. It is not proposed to recede in the least from these. Students will have the same opportunities for practical exercise in the different departments as those enjoyed by the class of 1880–81. For those who choose to attend during three sessions, the provisions as respects examinations in the elementary branches at the end of the second year, and an exclusive devotion to the practical departments during the third year, will be continued. To all students who are able to do so, now, as hitherto, attendance during three years is strongly recommended; and, from the number of those who have already matriculated with the expectation of attending three sessions, the Faculty entertain a belief that not an inconsiderable proportion of future classes will voluntarily follow their example.

"Notice is herewith given that, for the session of 1881–82, the requirements for graduation will be three years' pupilsage, after eighteen years of age, and attendance upon two full courses of lectures, the last being at the Bellevue Hospital Medical College. For farther details, members of the medical profession and students in medicine are referred to the annual circular and catalogue, which will be published soon after the annual meeting of the Faculty, in April, 1881."

Among the regulations of the College relating to the granting of the degree, the following extracts from the annual circular of 1883 will show the care exercised by the Faculty in this particular, and their desire to secure an honorable reputation for the diploma of "Bellevue."

"To prevent any misunderstanding with regard to the requirements for graduation, the Faculty desire to state that the only courses of lectures recognized are those taken at regularly organized medical colleges, empowered to confer the degree of M. D., the courses embracing the Practice of Medicine, Surgery, Obstetrics, Materia Medica, Physiology, Anatomy, and Chemistry. The tickets and diplomas of Eclectic, Homœopathic, or Botanic Colleges, or colleges devoted to any peculiar system of medicine, are considered irregular, and will not be recognized under any circumstances. Certificates from preceptors who practice any peculiar system of medicine, or who advertise, or violate in any way the code of ethics adopted by the profession, will not be received, under any circumstances, even if the preceptors be regular graduates in medicine. The three years of study are required by the charter of the College. The tickets of previous courses and evidence of one course of dissections must, in all cases, be exhibited to the Secretary; and no candidate will be admitted to examination until all of the above-mentioned requirements have been fulfilled."
With regard to ad eundem degrees, previous to 1875 candidates for this degree were examined only in the practical branches, but in that year the following regulations were adopted in addition to others already enforced, among which was the clause: "The Faculty will not grant an ad eundem degree to any graduate who does not file with the Secretary a certificate of membership in some medical society entitled to representation in the American Medical Association. Candidates of less than three years' standing who have not joined a medical society, may be examined for the degree; but such candidates will be required to file a certificate of three years' study, and to pass an examination in all the departments. If they have joined a medical society they will be examined the same as candidates of three years' standing; but no graduate of more than three years' standing will be examined unless he be a member of a medical society."

In the circular for 1878, the Faculty announced that graduates of other accredited colleges would thereafter be examined in all the departments, the same as undergraduates, and must fulfill all of the requirements demanded of undergraduates, except the writing of a thesis, and that in accordance with the requirements of the American Medical College Association, the ad eundem degree, so-called, would no longer be conferred.

In the résumé above given of the history of the College during twenty years, no one can fail to trace a gradual development and improvement of its course of instruction, and at the time when the change was adopted, in 1879, no school in the country possessed a corps of teachers more competent to decide the questions which occur in the management of such an institution in this country, or, if we may believe the statement quoted on page 48, more willing to maintain a position, so long held by the College, in the front rank of progress in medical education. Beyond the statements made in the circular last quoted, no reasons have ever before been made public for the abandonment of the obligatory entrance examination and the graded three years' course. A large diminution in the number of students had been foreseen; but a careful analysis of the class during the single session when the three years' course was made obligatory, and a liberal estimate of the number of students to be expected in the future, rendered it almost certain that, with the two other large medical schools in the city of New York, retaining the two years' course, the receipts from students would fail to be equal to the necessary expenses of the College. It is a source of much gratification that although the plan of a three years' course is now optional, it has been accepted by a considerable number of students and that with each succeeding year the proportion of such students increases. It remains, practically, but a question of time as to when the College shall again make a graded course of three years obligatory and reënact its requirement of an entrance examination. As it is the school has abated practically nothing as regards the opportunities offered by it for instruction, and it is to be hoped that within the next decade, the sentiment of the profession throughout the country, the higher standard of qualification required by State boards of examiners (already existing in six States), and the encouragement of its Alumni, will enable the College to again lead the advance in medical education in the United States.

Deceased. Dr. Griffin was born in New York City, May 16, 1843. He was the son of the late Thomas B. Griffin, M. D., who was also his preceptor in medicine. He was educated in the public schools and graduated from the Free Academy of New York City. His name appears on the list of those who matriculated with the first class. From 1863 to 1865 he served as Asst. Surg., of the First Regiment of New York Mounted Rifles and on his return from the Army Jenner, Jones, Hamilton; Member Vols., 28th General S. He enlisted the Army, 1863; Hosp. Demic Run, College. and Rochester, ton, strict he was loved A., B., D., and was among the earliest of those who enlisted in the Army of the United States. He was present at the first battle of Bull Run, and was soon afterward promoted to a First Lieutenant in the 16th N. Y. Vols., in which capacity he served until ill health obliged him to resign. Immediately after his graduation in medicine, he was appointed Acting Asst. Surg., U. S. A., and placed on duty at the McDougall General Hospital. While there, an epidemic of hospital gangrene occurred, furnishing the materials for a paper which he wrote on this subject, and which was incorporated in his father’s work on “Military Surgery.” He died in San Francisco, Cal., on the 18th of October, 1869, “full of promise and excellence,” and loved by all who knew him.

Deceased. Dr. Pray was killed in an accident on the Long Island R. R., on the 23d of April, 1869. After graduation he became a Member of the House-staff of Bellevue Hosp., serving as House Surg., until April, 1865, after which he went abroad for the purpose of continuing the study of Medicine. On his return he commenced practice in Brooklyn, and at the time of his death was a Clinical Asst. to the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary.

Deceased. Dr. Stone was born at Newburyport, Mass., on the 23d of October, 1826. He graduated from Harvard University, in 1848. During the summer in which he graduated, he went as an Asst. to Prof. Agassiz, on a survey of the shores of Lake Superior. In consequence of an attack of typhoid fever, he was obliged to abandon the expedition, and, to expedite his recovery, he undertook a voyage to Singapore, where he remained for two years, engaged in mercantile pursuits. He then returned to the United States, and settled in California. In 1859, he commenced the study of medicine at the Harvard Medical School, and afterward attended two courses of lectures at the Bellevue Hosp. Med. Col. He graduated in 1863 and became House Phys. in Bellevue Hosp., serving until October, 1863. He next obtained the position of Act. Asst. Surg., U. S. A., and was on duty in the Mil. Hosp. In charge of Prof. Matt, on Lexington Ave., (now Nursery and Child’s Hosp.) and at the same time commenced practice in the city. After about a year, he moved to West Farms, N. Y. (1864), where he died, April 8, 1866, of double pneumonia, contracted from exposure during a midnight drive in a cold rainstorm to visit a patient.

Deceased. Dr. Brownell was born in Sharon, Ct., 1883, and received a classical education in Marietta College, Ohio. He studied medicine with Dr. Weber, of Cincinnati, and, after graduation, served as House Surgeon in Bellevue Hospital until April, 1865. During the latter portion of his service he was Curator of the Museum.

In consequence of the development of pulmonary tuberculosis, he accepted an appointment as Surgeon to the steamship “Arago,” and held this position for eighteen months, but without any apparent benefit to his health; on the contrary, his disease continued to advance, and, notwithstanding his condition was becoming worse, for the sake of a warmer climate, he joined a party of gentlemen intending to make the tour of Upper Egypt. During his passage up the Nile, he was seized with pulmonary hemorrhage, which caused his death in about ten minutes, January 27, 1887. His body was interred in the vaults of a convent, near Edfou, on the Nile. He was twenty-nine years of age at the time of his death. The Medical Record contains a paper, on “The Treatment of Fistula in Ano by Compressed Sponge,” written while he was aboard the “Arago.”

Gamble, George.
Deceased. Dr. Gamble was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 20, 1838. In infancy and youth he was of delicate constitution, but in manhood developed to good general health, though never robust. His early education was obtained in the best private schools in Cincinnati, and at the age of nineteen he entered Kenyon College, from which he graduated, with high honors, in 1861, and subsequently received the degree of M. A. He studied medicine in Cincinnati until 1862, when he matriculated in Bellevue. Following his graduation in 1864, he entered the military service as Assistant Surgeon, and was stationed at the U. S. Gen. Hosp., at Madison, Ind.; but desiring to continue his medical studies, he resigned his position, and from the autumn of 1864 to 1866 he became a member of the House Staff of Bellevue Hosp. Soon after the expiration of his service, in the Spring of 1866, he visited the hospitals of Dublin, Edinburgh and London, and then proceeded to Berlin for the purpose of studying pathology, especially devoting his attention to the subject of pulmonary phthisis, traveling the same path which has since been trodden by Koch. By long hours of labor over diseased lungs, he undoubtedly became infected by that which Koch has since shown to be the germ of the disease. In the summer of 1867, while recreating in one of the delightful student tours along the Elbe, through Saxony and into Bohemia, and resting awhile in Dresden and Prague, his companion was a Dr. Johnson, who says that at this time he was enjoying excellent health, and suffered from no complaint whatever. He soon returned to Berlin and applied himself more zealously than ever in microscopic researches upon consumption. The fruits of his labor are seen in hundreds of specimens prepared while he was in Berlin, and now in the possession of his family. During the early part of 1868 he had a slight cough. In February a considerable hemorrhage occurred, and, following professional advice, he went, in April, to Pisa, where members of his family joined him. From Pisa he went, in May, to Genoa; then to Geneva, and, still losing strength, to Paris, on his way to Ireland, where he had relations. On the 20th of June, leaving Paris, he reached Folkstone after a tiresome journey. As the train drew into the station at London, he died. His remains lie in the Episcopal burial place of his father's family, at Rosserry, near Enniskillen, County of Fermanagh, Ireland. He was always a favorite with the staff, and his division was thought to be the desirable one, from the character of the "House." The esteem in which he was regarded by his fellows is shown in this, that he was the President of the Hosp. Med. Soc. He was always diligent as a student, kindly and social, and known by all as a professing christian."—G. E. W.

Luaces, Antonio L.

Doctor Luaces was born in Puerto Principe, Cuba, June 18th, 1842. His early education was received in his native city. At the age of eleven, in company with his brothers, he came to the United States, and, after three years of preparatory study, entered the Univ. of the City of N.Y., graduating in 1861. After receiving his academic degree, he entered Dr. James R. Wood's office as a student in medicine and matriculated at the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, graduating in 1865. After graduation he served a term in Bellevue Hospital (to April 1, 1866). After this he spent several months on duty in some of the military hospitals during the war, and subsequently went to Paris, pursuing his studies there and at Madrid, receiving a degree from the University of Madrid. While in Madrid he learned of the Cuban Insurrection and immediately returned to New York, where he joined the expedition of General Thomas Jordan, then about to sail with arms and ammunition for the Cubans. Upon landing in Cuba he received an appointment as Medical Director on Gen. Jordan's staff, which position he held for one year. He was then appointed Chief of the Sanitary Corps of the 3d Division of the Cuban Army, filling this position with marked ability, and succeeded by his wise counsel and untiring exertions, in putting an end to many of the cruelties and barbarities which characterized the conduct of that unfortunate struggle, and inaugurated in their place more civilized methods. On one occasion, at the battle of Palo Seco, he was instrumental in saving the lives of sixty-four prisoners and setting them at liberty, at the very time the Spaniards were shooting the Cubans and Americans captured on the Virginins. At the battle of La Sacra, Luaces claimed the release of a Spanish physician who had been taken prisoner and had him set at liberty.
He continued in the service until 1875, receiving in 1873 a severe wound in the shoulder. On April 19th, 1875, he was taken prisoner, his horse having been shot under him. He was carried to Puerto Principe, where he had not been in twelve years, and on April 20th, 1875, was led out and publicly shot, thus terminating, in his native city, at the early age of 33 years, a life full of energy, courage and enthusiasm and one which, had it been spared, gave promise of rare fulfillment.—F. Macdonald, John.

Deceased. He was born in Scotland, and commenced the study of medicine in Edinburgh, where he attended one course of lectures. He came to this country about 1863, and for a time served as one of the medical officers of the 173d N. Y. State Vols. At the time of his graduation he lived in Williamsburgh, N. Y., but he removed later to Pottsville, Pa., where he died of cerebral hemorrhage in 1866.—G. H. S.

Varick and Maria Rensil, both of whom belonged to New York families of Dutch origin. He received his preliminary education in the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn, and took the degree of A. B. from Columbia College, in 1862. His medical studies were commenced with Dr. C. L. Mitchell, of Brooklyn. He attended lectures at the College of Phys., and Surg., and Bellevue Hosp. Med. Col., and graduated from the latter in 1867. He became House Surg. of Bellevue Hosp., and, during his term of service, was attacked with cholera, which was then epidemic, and died on the 22d of August, 1866.

Southack, John W.,
Deceased. Dr. Southack was born in New York, on the 21st of December, 1839. He graduated in Arts at Columbia College, in 1861, and the year following commenced the study of medicine with Prof. Wood. After receiving his professional degree, he served during 1864 and 1865 as House Surgeon in Bellevue Hospital, and during this time contracted a dissection-wound which resulted in the partial loss of the use of one of his fingers, and led to the formation of an axillary abscess. He suffered, at the same time, an attack of acute articular rheumatism, from which he made a tedious and but partial recovery. He assisted, however, by a couple of months' travel in England. In 1866, he was appointed Curator to Bellevue Hospital, and Assistant Demonstrator of Anatomy in the College. At about the same time, he also became Clinical Assistant at the New York Eye Infirmary. He commenced practice in 1866, but, during the succeeding year, was obliged to give it up, owing to an attack of hemoptysis. Following this he went again to Europe, where he spent three months, with much benefit to his health, and, on his return, was appointed Attending Surgeon to the Bureau of Medical and Surgical Relief for Outdoor Poor, Bellevue Hospital. In February, 1868, he was again obliged, on account of ill health, to go abroad. He studied in Virchow's laboratory, with Stricker in Vienna, and Recklinghausen in Würzburg, and again returned to New York, in September, 1869. He inaugurated a course of practical pathology at Bellevue, and devoted the greater portion of his time to private teaching. In a few months, however, his health again failed, and he died on the 14th of December, 1869.

Newkirk, Henry Clay,
Deceased. He was born near Big Prairie, Ohio, on the 4th of August, 1839. He commenced the study of medicine in 1862, at the Ohio Med. Col., Cincinnati, Ohio, and in May, 1864, was appointed Asst. Surg. of the 166th Regt. Ohio Vol. Inf. In the fall of the same year he was stationed at the Prison Hospital, at Rock Island, Ill., and there remained until the close of the war. After his graduation, he returned to Big Prairie, but on the following year he removed to Independence, Iowa. The rigorous climate was, however, too severe for his delicate constitution, and he soon returned to his native place and established a lucrative business. His death was caused, Aug. 23, 1871, by cardiac hypertrophy. He was a man of fine abilities, and arrived at unusual attainments in his business for one of his years. He was greatly loved and respected.

Keyser, Joseph Denison.
Died at Kingston, N. Y., Aug. 14, 1875. He was born in New York City, Nov. 2, 1810, and commenced the study of medicine with his uncle, Dr. W. H. Keyser, of Albany, N. Y., in 1860. In 1862 he enlisted as Hospital Steward in the 13th N. Y. Vols. At James City he was taken prisoner and sent to Belle Isle, Richmond. After three or four months he was removed to Salisbury, N. C., and later, to Andersonville, S. C., whence, after nine months, he was again transferred to Savannah, Ga., and there exchanged, after an imprisonment of fourteen months. While at Andersonville it was discovered that he was a physician, and he was placed in charge of a department of the Confederate hospital. He was one of the witnesses in the famous trial of Lieut. Wirtz. After the war he resumed his studies with Dr. Van Hovenburgh, of Kingston, and he settled in Kingston after his graduation. About two years before his death he had a severe illness from pleurisy, and, by the advice of his physicians, went to Lower California in 1873. His health gradually failing, he returned to Kingston in May, 1875, and suffered severely until his death. He was at one time Secretary of the Med. Soc. of the Co. of Ulster. He was remarkable for a high grade of professional skill, and his Christian character.

Died in New York City, Oct. 13, 1880, of diabetes (lasting since 1876). He was a member of the Med. Soc. of the Co. of N.Y.
Thompson, Bradford Smith.
Deceased. For several years following his graduation Dr. Thompson resided in New York City. He was given the degree of Master of Arts by Yale College after graduation at Bellevue. From 1862 to the end of the year he was an acting Assistant Surgeon, U. S. Army. In 1867-68 he was Librarian of the N. Y. Med. Lib. and Jour. Assoc.; Corresp. Sec. of the Med. Soc. of the County of N.Y., from 1867 to 1873; Statistical Sec. of the N. Y. Acad. of Med. during 1870-71 and '72; Connected with the editorial staff of the Medical Record from 1865 to 1873; Member of the Amer Med. Assoc.; Non-resident Fellow N. Y. Acad. of Med.; Fellow of Conn State Med. Soc., and member of Litchfield Co. (Conn.) Med. Soc.
Removed to Salisbury, where he married the daughter of one of the prominent citizens, and had built up a large practice. He was considered singularly happy in his domestic relations, but had no children. He became engaged in stock speculations which proved unfortunate, and in order to cover his margin he raised what money he could, and finally was driven to commit forgery. In his distress he left home, Nov. 9th, 1882, avowedly to come to New York for a day. Not returning, his family became alarmed and sought him in this city, and learned that he had been at Coleman House on Nov. 10, but heard nothing more until they learned that he had been in Parkersburg, W. Va., sick, for three weeks. They subsequently learned of his being in Indiana with a friend with whom he spent several weeks, and on Dec. 21st went to Cincinnati, where he was found dead in his room on Jan. 1st, 1883, having committed suicide.—F. H. B.
There is little doubt in the minds of those who knew Dr. Thompson that the cause of his financial troubles and untimely death was cerebral disease. A dishonest act would be thoroughly out of keeping with his character, as well known to those associated with him at the time he removed to Connecticut.

Kerr, Edwin Monroe.
Deceased. Dr. Kerr was born in Danville, Ky., in 1841, and educated at Westminster College, in Fulton, Mo., from which he received the degree of A. M. in course.
His medical education was entirely recieved previous to graduation at "Bellevue." He commenced practice in Fulton, Mo., and soon acquired distinction, being a conscientious and painstaking practitioner. He never allowed himself to de-gerate into mere routine work, or to ride hobbies. A man of good judgment, tender sympathies, affable disposition and systematic business habits, he won for himself the esteem of both the profession and the laity. Though doing a general practice, his preference was for surgery, and of the limited amount of operative surgery within the field of his labors he did more than any of the local fraternity.
His ethical conduct placed him upon cordial and pleasant relations with all his fellow laborers. Though well qualified for literary work, both by reason of his education and clinical experience, he rarely, if ever, reported a case, or prepared a paper for publication. He was eminently a practitioner. He died, April 22, 1883, of acute general peritonitis, following an attack of partial peritonitis, from which he had not fully recovered. Dr. Kerr, at the time of his death, was a member of Linton Dist. Med. Soc.; one of the Board of Managers of the Missouri State Lunatic Asylum, at Fulton, and one of the Trustees of Westminster College.—M. Y.

DeLuna, Abelardo Bellido.
Died in New York City, March 2, 1883, of pulmonary phthisis, at the age of thirty-three years. He was born in Havana, Cuba, and was educated in the College of San Francisco de Asis, in Havana, and the College of La Empresa, Matanzas. He came to the United States in 1863, and resided at Bridgeport, Conn. He graduated in the Class of '60, and commenced practice in New York City. He was at different times Visiting Phys., N. Western Disp.; Attend. Surg. Bureau of Med. and Surg. Relief for Out-door Poor; Member Med. Soc. of the Co. of N. Y.; Fellow of the N. Y. Acad. of Med. (of which he was at one time the Secretary), and Inspector of the Board of Health.

Papers, etc.:—He made a Spanish translation of the work by Prof. T. G. Thomas, on the "Diseases of Women" (D. Appleton & Co.), and was an Assistant Editor of La Chronica Medico QuiRurgica, published in Havana. In July, 1881, in connection with his father, Juan Bellido De Luna, he began the publication of a Spanish illustrated monthly, called El Mentor Ilustrado, and in December, 1882, commenced to edit for William Wood & Co., a Spanish medical journal, El Medico Reporiorio. In addition to his literary labors he had a large and increasing practice.

Stanley, Claude Graham.
Died in New York City, May 24, 1877, of suicidal poisoning. He was born in New York City in 1815, and graduated in the class of '70. He was a member of the Med. Soc. of the Co. of N. Y., and a Fellow of the N. Y. Academy of Med., and in 1872 one of the Surgeons of Police.
Much trouble has been experienced after a lapse of more than ten years in obtaining information respecting his early or professional life, but Dr. C. M. Hobby, of Iowa City, Iowa, writes: “Of the class of 1870, there was no more zealous, faithful or capable student than C. G. Stanley. Under the cloud of social disapprobation, for which he was not to blame; under adverse circumstances, for which there was no remedy—he was the most earnest student I ever knew; and I feel to-day, more strongly than I did twelve years ago, that under any ordinary circumstances, released from those most horrible domestic misfortunes which attended him, and which proved too much for him, later, than they would for most men, he would have been the man of the class of 1870, of which we would all have been proud. I knew him in 1867; I was his friend in '68;
he was my most intimate companion in '69-70. For years he was a correspondent most valued."

Morgan, Edwin D., Jr.
Deceased. Son of the late ex-Governor E. D. Morgan. Was born at Hartford, Conn., Sept. 8, 1834. Two years later his parents removed to New York City. An opportunity for making a tour around the world at the time when he would otherwise have been in college, prevented his early education extending beyond attendance at schools. Following his marriage to Miss Sarah E. Archer, of Suffield, Conn., he became a farmer at Throgg's Neck, Westchester Co., N. Y., but he soon abandoned that occupation and removed to New York. Here he engaged chiefly in mercantile pursuits, and during the war held a position on the staff of his father. During his father's presence in the U. S. Senate, he had charge of his business affairs. When he had reached the age of thirty-three years, he resolved to study medicine, and having matriculated at Bellevue, he graduated in the class of '71. In 1877 he developed the disease of the kidneys from which he died at Suffield, Conn., on the 10th of August, 1879. Dr. Morgan devoted himself ardently to the practice of medicine, and during his brief career as a physician distinguished himself by his labors in behalf of the sick poor. He was a member of the Med. Soc. of the Co. of N. Y.

Amable, Ramon.
Deceased. Born in Santiago, Cuba, Nov., 1850, where he commenced his medical studies, attending college in Havana. Owing to political troubles he was obliged to leave Cuba, and came to New York with the expectation of joining his brother Sebastian, then a member of the Resident Staff of Bellevue. Just previous to his arrival, however, Sebastian had joined an expedition to Cuba, and Ramon, then only twenty years of age and unable to speak English, found himself dependent upon his own resources and in a strange city. The late Prof. James R. Wood became his preceptor, and while under his tutelage Ramon graduated in the Class of '72. He entered the Park Hospital, on Centre St., as Ambulance Surgeon, Assistant, and House Surgeon, and much of the reputation acquired by that institution during its brief existence was due to his efforts. His experience there enabled him to command, after his settlement in private practice, the best surgical practice of the lower part of the city, and gained for him the sobriquet of “The Boy Surgeon.” He soon developed pulmonary phthisis, from which he died on the 19th of Sept., 1877, leaving a wife. He was a member of the Med. Soc. of the County of N. Y., and of the N. Y. Medico-Legal Soc.

Deceased. He lived in Syracuse, N. Y., where he was born Nov. 15, 1818. At the commencement of the rebellion he enlisted in the 149th N. Y. Vols. and served with this regiment through the war, being wounded at Chancellorsville, in 1863. In 1866 he was given a commission as Lieutenant in the 51st U. S. Inf., which he subsequently resigned, and then commenced the study of medicine at “Bellevue.” Following graduation he commenced the practice of medicine in Syracuse, where, in 1876, he was elected Coroner. He died July 11th, 1883. For more than three years previous to his death, he suffered from asthma and pulmonary phthisis.

Metzger, Isaac.

Deceased. Dr. Metzger was a native of Absaic, and came with his parents to this country in his infancy. His father having died when he was about seven years old, he was early employed in the store of his step-father, at Peekskill, N. Y. Owing to his dislike for business, and his preference for medicine, Dr. Stewart, of Peekskill, became his preceptor, and he afterwards graduated in the class of 1872. His first settlement was at Rondout, N. Y., where his success was unexpectedly great, but, with a desire to increase his acquirements, he became the Resident Physician of the Mount Sinai Hospital, in New York City, on the 4th of February, 1873. Three weeks later he was taken ill, and after another three weeks died of abscess of the liver, on the 24th of March, 1873, Aged 24 years.

Alvarez, Miguel Angel.
Deceased. He was born in Granada, Nicaragua, Aug. 5th, 1850. After his graduation he entered the House Staff of Charity Hospital, and still later studied gynecology with the late J. Marion Sims. From July, 1875 to April, 1876, he practiced medicine in Rivas, Nicaragua, and in July of the same year, was married to Caroline A. Baldwin, of Milford, Conn. He then practiced in the City of Mexico, until December, 1876, when he was appointed Surgeon in the Army of Gen. Porfirio Diaz; was twice promoted, and in Guadalajara was given the charge of the typhus fever hospital. On the road from there to Mexico, he was attacked himself with typhus, and died in the City of Mexico, March 4th, 1877. He was buried in the American cemetery. Owing to his sudden death he was unable to avail himself of an appointment, which had just been given him, of Physician to one of the hospitals of the City of Mexico. His widow still resides (1883) in Granada.

Post, William Elisha Howell.
Deceased. Born in Quogue, N. Y. (Long Island), Feb. 27, 1848. He was educated under the direction of a private tutor, and prepared for college by Prof. N. H. Griffin, of Williamstown, Mass. He graduated from Williams College in 1870. In the fall of the same year he commenced the study of medicine with Prof. James R. Wood and graduated after taking three courses of lectures at "Bellevue." Following his graduation he commenced practice in New York, and in October, 1874, was appointed an Assistant Sanitary Inspector in the Board of Health. About this time he was attacked with typho-malarial fever with which he was sick over six weeks.

On the 19th of July he was attacked with peritonitis, of which he died on the 23d of July, 1877. His remains were buried in Quogue. For some time previous to his death he was the secretary and treasurer of the Northwestern Medical and Surgical Society.—E. C. H.

Smith, Francis Asbury.

Died in New York City, November 4, 1881, of pulmonary hemorrhage. Born in New York City, Aug. 29, 1832, and studied medicine with Prof. James R. Wood. Following his graduation in 1874, he served on the Resident Staff of Bellevue Hospital from the fall of 1874 till the spring of 1876, and then commenced practice in New York City. His health was never robust, and in 1878 he had several pulmonary hemorrhages, and during the following winter and spring he sojourned in Florida. On his return he resumed his practice as well as duties as a visiting physician to St. Joseph's Home, and assistant surgeon to the N. Y. Eye and Ear Infirmary. In 1881, he again had two slight attacks of haemoptysis, and as a consequence gave up some of his work. On the day of his death, and while visiting a patient, a hemorrhage occurred so profuse as to cause his death in six hours, in the house where he was attacked.

_Died in New York City, June 30, 1881, of pneumonia. He was born at Santiago, Cuba, October, 1831, and was a son of the eminent Judge Tamayo of the same name. Having been educated in as liberal a manner as the wealth and social position of his family would allow, he came to New York to study medicine, and graduated in the class of '75. He commenced practice in New York City, and married Miss Carmen Amanhile, sister of Sebastian (class of '66), and of Ramon (class of '72). He left a widow and three daughters._

White, Oliver.
Deceased. Born in the town of Somers, N. Y., April 9, 1810, he was descended from Judge Thomas White, of Weymouth, Mass., a member of the Colonial Court in 1796. Dr. White commenced the study of medicine with his father, and graduated from the Medical Department of Yale College in 1831. He was the same year licensed to practice by the Connecticut State Medical Society, and at once removed to New York City, where he continued in practice until his death, Nov. 7, 1870. During his life he served as president and vice-president of the Med. Soc. of the County of N. Y., and was one of the founders of the N. Y. Academy of Med., serving as vice-president from 1866 to 1870, trustee from 1871 to 1876, and member of the committee on ethics from 1867 to the time of his death. He was one of the founders of the Soc. for the Relief of the Widows and Orphans of Medical Men, and at different times acted as its president, and for more than twenty years as one of its managers. He was a member of the Med. Soc. of the State of N. Y., and of the Amer. Med. Assoc. He took an active part in the founding and organization of the Presbyterian Hospital, and at the time of his death was one of its consulting physicians and president of the medical board. He was also consulting physician to the Northeastern Dispensary, and a trustee of the New York Dispensary.*

Allen, Chester Griswold,
Deceased. Born at Westford, Otsego Co., N. Y., Feb. 15, 1888. He began the study of medicine in 1873. Following his graduation he commenced the practice of medicine in New York City, and became connected with the Northwestern Dispensary, first as Attending Phys. In the department of Diseases of the Heart and Lungs, and later as a District Phys. In the latter part of 1877 ill-health obliged him to give up practice, and he spent the winter in Florida and the Bahamas without benefit, and died Sept. 18, 1878, at Cooperstown, N. Y., of pulmonary phthisis. Preceding the study of medicine he devoted much attention to music, and was the editor of several Sunday-school collections, as well as the author of a work on the Cultivation of the Voice. For two years he edited the Musical Gazette, published in New York City.

Perham, Daniel Webster.
Deceased. Dr. Perham was born in Mount Pleasant, Wayne County, Pa., August 23, 1853. He was the son of Sylvius G., and Lucinda U. Perham, immediate descendants of the first settlers of that part of the state. His father being a large and thrifty farmer, he was brought up and trained to all the duties of that vocation, which gave him physical strength and a mature mind at an early age. He obtained his academic education at the Mount Pleasant Academy, a private institution of his native place. During the spring of 1874, he commenced the study of medicine in the office of his uncle, Dr. Warren Schoonovery, of New York City; entered "Bellevue" in the autumn of the same year, and graduated in the spring of 1877, ranking high in his class. On receiving his degree, he returned to his native place and practiced medicine for a few months, but, by the advice of his uncle, he returned to N. Y. City. June, 1877, he was appointed District Physician in the Northeastern Dispensary; August, 1878, he became associated with Dr. Alexander Hadden, as assistant in general practice, which positions he held at the time of his death. On November 26, 1881, he married Miss Cassie Hadden, of Orange Co. On April 19th, in apparent robust health, he was taken suddenly and seriously ill, which illness developed into cerebro-spinal meningitis. He grew gradually worse, in spite of all medical aid, and died April 27th, about nine days from the onset of the disease. He was a member of the Physicians' Mutual Aid Association, and N. Y. County Medical Society.

Wood, Milton Le Grand,
Reported to be deceased. At the time of his graduation he lived at Montgomery, Ala.

Woodbridge, Dudley,
Deceased. He was born in Marietta, Ohio, August 30th, 1853. Receiving his early education in Marietta, he entered Marietta College in ’80 and graduated in ’73. The year after graduation he read medicine in the office of Dr. Samuel Hart, of Marietta, and in the fall of ’74 matriculated at the Bellevue Hospital Medical College. After the conclusion of his first year he went to Europe and spent two years in travel, returning to complete his final course of lectures in the fall of ’76, and graduated in ’77. After graduation he settled in Bellaire, Ohio, where, by his winning manner and skilful attention to his duties, he soon built up a large and laborious practice. He was married to Miss Lizzie Anderson, of Bellaire, on June, 23rd, 1881. While a student at “Bellevue” he consulted the writer of this notice on account of some heart symptoms which had developed, and it was discovered that he had mitral insufficiency. His devoted attention to his large and growing practice soon told upon his health, and early in August, ’82, he was compelled to take to his bed with what were considered typhoid symptoms, complicated with pneumonia of a small portion of one lung. His overworked system was not equal to the struggle, and he died on August 22d, 1883. He was a man of rare promise, singularly winning in his personal character, and his death is a loss which only those who knew him can estimate.—F. H. B.

Ware, William Garland.
Deceased. He was born in Brownsville, Haywood Co., Tenn., Feb. 6th, 1857, and received his preliminary education at the Tennessee University, at Knoxville. He studied medicine with Dr. J. J. Ware, and attended both courses of lectures at "Belve-dre." Following his graduation he returned to Brownsville and commenced practice with his brother. In July of that year yellow fever broke out, and he worked bravely until the latter part of the epidemic when he, too, was attacked. After a long illness and tedious convalescence he again resumed his practice, and was succeeding admirably when, in the spring of 1879, he developed typhoid fever and died.—W. B. R.

He died Aug. 6, 1883, after an illness of four months’ duration, at Asbury Park, N. J., whither he had gone to seek relief from chronic malarial poisoning. Dr. Montes was a resident of New York for about ten years, and possessed many friends among the Masonic fraternity and in the medical profession. His sterling qualities and exceptional kindness of manner endeared him to all who knew him. He was an interne in the Randall’s Island Hospital during 1873, where he gained the respect of the visiting staff and the gratitude of his patients. He left a widow and an infant daughter.—S. H.

Deceased. He was born in Huntsville, Ala., Dec. 9, 1854, and in 1872-73 was a student in the Washington-Lee University. For several years afterward he was engaged in business in Huntsville, but ultimately entered the Univ. of Virginia. Leaving there he came to New York, and after graduation entered the House Staff of Charity Hospital. He next became a member of the Resident Staff of the Woman's Hospital. On the expiration of his term of service he visited Huntsville preparatory to a trip to Europe, in order to further fit himself to accept a professional alliance with Prof. T. Gaillard Thomas. Soon after his arrival at home he was attacked with peritonitis, and died after a few hours' illness on the 22d of July, 1882.

_New Rochelle, N. Y._

Rudulph, James Williams.

Deceased. He was born in Wood county, Ohio, near Bowling Green, September 20, 1855, where he lived until he entered his medical studies at Columbus, Ohio, in the fall of 1875. He attended two courses in the Columbus Medical College, graduating in February, 1877, with the highest average grade in his class. He soon after located in Defiance, Ohio, where he practiced until the fall of 1878, when his health failing he returned to his home near Bowling Green. He remained on the farm for about a year and seemed to have regained his wonted health. Always ambitions to stand with the best in his profession, he longed for better opportunities of study than he had enjoyed, and he determined to spend the following winter in New York. He entered “Bellevue” and graduated with the class of ’80. He located in his native place, where he met with deserved success. In August, however, he was prostrated by an attack of pleurisy, from which he never fully recovered. The usual symptoms of pulmonary tuberculosis, followed by severe laryngeal trouble. A hemorrhage four years previous, and the death of other members of his family by the same disease, warned him of his danger. He lingered, patiently enduring his suffering, complaining only that he was not permitted to use the knowledge he had worked so studiously to obtain, until March 11, 1881, when he passed away in the full hope of an inheritance in that kingdom where suffering is unknown.—A. ENDORSED DIPLOMAS.

In 1880 a law was passed by the Legislature of the State, entitled "An Act to Regulate the Licensing of Physicians and Surgeons," in which occurs the following:

"§ 4. A person coming to the state from without the state may be licensed to practice physic and surgery, or either, within the state in the following manner: If he has a diploma conferring upon him the degree of doctor of medicine, issued by an incorporated universitv, medical college or medical school without the state, he shall exhibit the same to the faculty of some incorporated medical college or medical school of this state, with satisfactory evidence of his good moral character, and such other evidence, if any, of his qualifications as a physician or surgeon as said faculty may require. If his diploma and qualifications are approved by them, then they shall endorse said diploma, which shall make it for the purpose of his license to practice medicine and surgery within this state the same as if issued by them. The applicant shall pay to the dean of said faculty the sum of twenty dollars for such examination and endorsement. This endorsed diploma shall authorize him to practice physic and surgery within the state upon his complying with the provisions of section two of this act."

In conformity with the law above quoted, the following persons have submitted diplomas to the secretary of the faculty and received his endorsement, whereby they have become, in some sense, alumni of the College. Their names will not, however, be found among those who received diplomas in regular course.

CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS

— OF —

The Alumni Association of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College.

CONSTITUTION.*

ARTICLE I.

Name.

This Association shall be known as "The Alumni Association of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College."

ARTICLE II.

Object.

The object of the Association shall be the promotion of good fellowship and social intercourse among the graduates of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College and the furtherance of the interests of their Alma Mater.

ARTICLE III.

Membership.

Section 1. Every graduate of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, so long as he shall have conformed to the Code of Ethics of the American Medical Association shall be a member of the Association.

Faculty.

Sec. 2. Members of the faculty of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, other than alumni, shall be members of this Association and entitled to all the privileges of membership.

ARTICLE IV.

Officers.

The officers of the Association shall be a President, two Vice-Presidents, a Recording Secretary, a Corresponding Secretary, a Treasurer and a Historian, who shall, with the exception of the latter, be elected annually at the stated meetings of the Association. The Historian shall hold office permanently, or during the pleasure of the Association.

ARTICLE V.

President.

Section 1. The President, or, in his absence, the Vice-Presidents in their order, or a chairman pro tempore, shall preside at all meetings of the Association or Board of Managers and appoint members of the Nominating Committee.

Rec. Secretary.

Sec. 2. The Recording Secretary shall be responsible for the care of all papers belonging to the Association, excepting such as pertain to the duties of the Historian, keep a minute of the proceedings of the Association and of the Board of Managers, notify officers and members of committees of their election or appointment and certify official acts.

* Adopted April 31, 1883.

Sec. 3. The Corresponding Secretary shall conduct all the Corresponding Secretary correspondence of the Association, not otherwise provided for, present a report thereof at the annual meeting of the Association, issue notices of all meetings of the Association and Board of Managers, and, in the absence of the Recording Secretary, perform his duties.

Sec. 4. The Treasurer shall have charge of all moneys belonging to the Association, pay therewith all its expenses, and shall present his account to the Association at its annual meeting.

Sec. 5. The Historian shall keep a register of all Alumni of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, and, as far as may be in his power, a record of all change of residence, honors, death of Alumni, and all matters of interest to the Association, and shall report the same at the annual meetings.

Article VI.

Section 1. The business of the Association, such as is not otherwise provided for, shall be conducted by a Board of Managers, consisting of forty (40) members, one-fourth of whom shall be elected for four years at each annual meeting.

Sec. 2. The present board shall be elected from the council in groups of ten; one for one year, one for two years, one for three years, and one for four years.

Sec. 3. The President, Recording Secretary and Corresponding Secretary shall be members, ex-officio, of the Board of Managers.

Article VII.

A Nominating Committee, to be appointed by the President at each annual meeting, shall consist of five members whose duty it shall be to report at the next annual meeting the names of at least twenty for members of the Board of Managers, and at least two candidates for each of the offices of the Association.

Article VIII.

This constitution may be amended by a two-thirds vote of the members present at the annual meeting, provided that notice of the proposed amendment be given at a meeting held at least one month prior to the meeting at which the changes are to be acted upon.
BY-LAWS.*

Meetings.
Section 1. The day and place of the annual meeting shall be appointed by the Board of Managers, and special meetings shall be called by the President on the written request of twenty members.

Sec. 2. Meetings of the Board of Managers shall be called by the President. He shall also call a meeting on the written request of five members of the Board.

Quorum.
Sec. 3. Twenty-one members of the Association shall constitute a quorum.

Sec. 4. Seven members of the Board of Managers shall constitute a quorum.

Order of Business.
Sec. 5. At the meetings of the Association the following shall be the order of business:
   1. Report of Special Committees.
   2. Report of Corresponding Secretary.
   5. Report of Board of Managers.
   7. Election of Officers and Managers.
   8. New or Unfinished Business.
   9. Papers or Addresses.
   10. Reading and Approval of Minutes.
   11. Adjournment.

Amendments.
Sec. 6. These By-Laws may be amended at any meeting of the Board of Managers by a two-thirds vote of all the members present, provided that ten days' notice of the nature of the proposed changes shall have been given to the Board.

Suspension.
Sec. 7. These By-Laws may be suspended at any meeting of the Association by an unanimous vote of the members present.

* Adopted April 21, 1883.
ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

The names of alumni have been arranged in classes according to the lists of graduates published annually by the College. In certain instances diplomas were granted subsequent to the publication of the catalogue of that year, in which case the names appeared with the next graduating class. In the following list of these exceptions the date of such diplomas is indicated.
